'TALK' FAILS TO STOP YANKS

Tim McCarver, Cardinals catcher, argues with plate umpire Bill McKinley in sixth inning of the second game of the World Series Thursday. New York defeated the Redbirds 8-3. McCarver and teammates argued McKinley's call on a pitch by Card hurler Bob Gibson which McKinley ruled hit Joe Pepitone of the Yankees. More pictures and stories on Page 17.)

—'TALENT FOR TEACHING'—

NU Plan Helps Instructor, Pupil

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

It is often said that the teacher learns as much from the pupils as the pupils learn from the teacher.

True or not, one thing is for certain, the University of Nebraska students who take part in "Talent for Teaching" and the children they help both learn a lot.

"Talent for Teaching," a program started last year and sponsored by the Elementary Education Department at the University of Nebraska, gives university students a chance to privately tutor elementary children.

Working

Claudia Westphalen of Lincoln, a senior in elementary education and student leader of the program, explained "Talent for Teaching," as a working relationship between a child and a university student.

She said that after contacting the principal of a school and a teacher, the university student goes out to the school and spends an hour working separately with one student who either needs help in some particular subject or is especially interested in one.

"For example," she said, "if the student is deeply interested in social studies, we will have a writing project in which he can write to all the state capitals or to several countries for information."

Aid Slow Learner

On the other hand, she pointed out, the program will give the slow learner a little extra tutoring with his reading or his math.

"We try to create enthusiasm and interest in the child if he doesn't have it already and create new ways for him to learn," Miss Westphalen said.

Obviously the child will benefit, but since learning is a dual process the university student also learns a great deal from working with the child.

Gives Start

Dr. Barbara Groethe, assistant professor in elementary education and advisor for the program, said "Talent for Teaching" helps those who wish to teach get a start at working with children.

Miss Westphalen said, "Many times university students are not sure if teaching is the field they want and our program helps them find out how they feel about teaching."

Although many of the students who participate in "Talent for Teaching" are education majors, Miss Westphalen made it clear that all students are welcome and that the only requirement is that they "like to work with children."

75 Students

Last year 75 university students participated in the program at two elementary schools, Bancroft and Capitol.

This year "Talent for Teaching" plans to "extra teach" in at least three other elementary schools.

U.S. Demands Soviets Pay Up

. . . REDS HINT THEY'LL QUIT

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—The United States gave notice Thursday it will demand that voting rights be taken away from the Soviet Union the day the U.N. Assembly opens—Nov. 10 — unless the Russians pay up for peacekeeping operations.

The step was taken amid hints from the Soviet Union that it will quit the U.N. if it is deprived of its assembly vote.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson spelled out in detail the U.S. position on the U.N. financial crisis in a long memorandum to Secretary-General U Thant for circulation as an official document.

Reasonable Answer

Stevenson expressed the United States' willingness to accept any reasonable solution for breaking the deadlock over finances — provided it includes payment of money to the U.N. by the Soviet Union and other debtor nations.

Stevenson took the step here as Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in Washington that Soviet reluctance to pay anything on its $55 million debt deeply affected the constitutional structure of the world organization.

The memorandum said all U.N. members must be prepared to be flexible on how the back payments should be made.

"The only vitally essential ingredient in any solution is that the funds be made available to the United Nations," it added.

Charter's Article 19

The United States contends that under Article 19 of the U.N. Charter, any member two years in arrears on its financial contributions shall be deprived of its assembly vote.

The memorandum pointed to the Nov. 10 opening date and said that day "presents the inevitable and inescapable issue" of adhering to that provision of the Charter.

The first business of the assembly is to elect a new president, and thus the matter of the right to vote becomes an immediate issue.

The Soviet Union and nine other countries are more than two years in arrears on U.N. peacekeeping assessments. By the time the assembly meets the list may be down to six—the Soviet Union, the Ukraine, Byelorussia, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Romania.

Grange Wants Taxation Shift

The Nebraska State Grange ended its 54th convention in Lincoln Thursday afternoon by approving a resolution calling for a state income tax which would be based on gross net income.

Albert J. Ebers of Seward, newly elected master of the State Grange, said that according to the Grange's resolutions, an income tax rate should be set each year which will replace the property tax and a substantial part of the school tax.

Their proposal also called for a low corporation income tax and a slightly graduated type tax.

For Trade Schools

Another resolution winning approval called for enlargement of the vocational and technological training school at Milford and for several new ones to be built in western and north central Nebraska.

"A statewide survey," Ebers explained, "shows that over 4,000 youths will seek enrollment at Milford next year, but Milford can only handle 300 more new students."

In other resolutions the Grange:

—Urged using the average annual inventory on livestock and poultry as the tax base when the farmer is assessed.

Cost Basis

—Said that a farmer's personal property should be taxed on basis of cost instead of the selling price.

—Insisted that farm income must be brought up to parity with other segments of the national economy.

—Urged that more efforts be made by various farm organizations to work cooperatively on mutual problems and to do a better public relations job.

Back Wheat Supports

—Supported present wheat legislation, hoping to increase domestic use to 100% parity.

—Supported the Proxmire legislation on marketing milk in federal milk marketing order markets. (Which according to the Grange will permit a producer to produce milk at a profit without limiting his production.)

—Opposed common carriers or the Interstate Commerce Commission trying to reduce or eliminate agriculture exemptions put forth in the Transportation Act of 1945.

Barry Flays 'Gut Issue,' Sees 'Looks Of Hatred'

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater eyed the stretch drive of the presidential campaign Thursday, convinced he's ripping into President Johnson's strength on the "gut issue" of ethics and morality in government.

The Republican candidate flayed away on this theme as he swung through the President's home state, hitting also at government meddling in local affairs.

A source close to the Arizona senator said he believes the growing number of undecided voters shows his own chances spiralling upwards.

Ethics

And it is the senator's belief that this is caused by growing concern of the people about ethics and morality, the single so-called "gut issue" of the campaign in his mind.

The same source who summed up Goldwater's feelings on a number of issues said he was becoming more troubled every day "by this look of hatred" he sees on the faces of young people turning out to boo him. Goldwater believes they are being used in a well-planned, organized campaign.

Turning from decrying the Bobby Baker and Billie Sol Estes cases at Lubbock and El Paso, Tex., Goldwater hit hard at centralized government power here.

'LBJ Deceives'

Here on the high plains of West Texas, Goldwater accused Johnson of playing politics to deceive the people.

"I charge that my opponent is not waging a campaign at all," Goldwater declared. "He is staging a political roadshow."

The feeling that Goldwater's strength is on the upswing is based on GOP polls showing the undecided as much as 18% in Colorado, for instance.

Goldwater ran into heckling Wednesday that drowned him out in speeches at Asbury Park and West Orange, N.J. The hecklers appeared to be, in the main, teen-agers.

Hit By Egg

Goldwater was hit on the hand by a egg as he left Teaneck, N.J., Wednesday night, it was revealed Thursday. Rocks have been thrown at his car, and he has been spat at.

One associate of the senator claims a certain man was seen at San Diego, also a scene of violent heckling, and twice Wednesday at New Jersey rallies.

In Lubbock, Goldwater said Johnson was "dodging the major issues." He said he wanted the President to say what will he do to remove the shadow that such scandals as Billie Sol Estes and Bobby Baker cast over the White House and explain how will he make U.S. streets safe from crime and riots.

Lyndon Portrays Barry As Backward-Looking Phantom

With Johnson in the Midwest (AP)—President Johnson staged a get-out-the-vote drive across Indiana and Ohio Thursday that pictured Republican rival Barry Goldwater as a sort of phantom candidates who wants to go backward instead of forward.

"I'm not sure," Johnson said, "whether there is a real Republican candidate to vote for this time."

The President pounded the campaign circuit in states Goldwater considers vital, from Chicago to Gary, East Chicago and Indianapolis in Indiana, and on to Cleveland before heading for Louisville to spend the night.

Issues Emerging

Summing things up a bit differently in the text of his Cleveland speech, Johnson said the campaign issues are emerging clearly now.

"The issue of our foreign affairs, of war and peace, is one issue — and it has to be bluntly stated — of responsibility versus irresponsibility.

"The issue of our domestic affairs is whether the whole course of American development up to this time is right or is wrong."

"The argument to go back —to repeat the present and to veto the future—has been spelled out plainly by the opposition."

Courts Steelmen

He courted steelworkers in the racial melting pot area of northwestern Indiana which segregationist Gov. George A. Wallace of Alabama carried in the Indiana May primary.

He promised there to do something about the immigration laws, to abolish what he called "those discriminatory quotas" gradually and raise the limit by 9,000 or one-eightieth of one per cent of the work force.

Johnson was putting personal touches into the campaign. He was touching hands with everybody in reach, and shying away from outright hand clasps—his right hand had a bandage on it from previous contacts.

Whispers To Brunette

After making his Indianapolis speech, Johnson made a circuit of the Monument Circle, handshaking, kissing babies and — at one point—having a whispered conversation with a comely brunette who promptly burst into tears of hysterical joy.

The President, continuing his tour of the crowd, came to a construction site where a laborer in coveralls and a hard hat invited him behind a high plyboard fence surrounding the project.

Johnson hurdled a sawhorse barricade and pushed his way through the crowd to a rickety door that gave him entry to the work site.

Once inside, he chatted with about 30 construction hands, posed with them for pictures in which all raised their hands in "V" for victory gestures, then began autographing the sweatbands of the workmen's hats.

Invites Self In

At East Chicago, he suddenly invited himself into the home of a steelworker and sipped coffee, saying it was just like being with his own homefolks.

On the speaking stand there, he met a 116-year-old Negro woman, born in slavery, who said she is going to vote for him.

He sounded the get-out-the-vote air the first thing in the morning East Chicago by telling his listeners:

"No I haven't come out here to sling mud and say ugly things. You go and vote, and you vote for the man who in your judgment is most likely to protect your prosperity, your home, your safety . . . the man most likely to preserve peace in the world.

"If you do this according to the dictates of your conscience, Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey will be mighty happy."

NFO Members Hail Speech By Staley

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Columbus — A cheering crowd of more than 500 Nebraska NFO members roared their approval here Thursday as Oren Lee Staley, national NFO president termed the temporary halt in the NFO's withholding action a "breathing spell."

Staley, speaking at the fifth annual state National Farmers Organization convention, promised a program consisting of short periods of holding action interspersed with contract talks with processors.

"We'll hit processors with triphammer blows until they decide they want to be on the farmers side instead of with the chain stores," said Staley.

Benefits

Staley disclosed national NFO plans that included potential benefits for processors who cooperate with NFO collective bargaining plans.

"Processors are beginning to realize the benefits in having a supply of livestock for guaranteed delivery close at hand and when they need it."

"It would not only benefit the farmers, but this plan would benefit the processer tremendously, without having to worry about his supply."

While NFO members are awaiting future holding actions, Staley described other plans now in use in some states where farmers are pooling livestock for bids from processors.

"This demonstrates our strength and the numbers we can supply" said Staley.

He described the enthusiasm of Nebraska NFO members as part of a national NFO determination to succeed in raising farm income

Hit Violence

The number one resolution adopted by Nebraska NFO members was to condemn and denounce violence associated with holding actions.

Strong support for REA was placed in resolution form with NFO members encouraged to secure a public statement from Congressmen on their REA stand.

When it came to Nebraska tax problems, their decision, after considerable floor debate, was to shelve a resolution supporting a state income tax. "Let's stick to collective bargaining for agricultural products instead of politics," said a member from the floor.

Election

C. C. Detering of Stapleton and Val Ackerland of Valley were elected national NFO directors.

Gov. Frank Morrison in addressing the convention said "Anyone who thinks America can exist without a farm program is whistling in the dark".

Another farm organization, The Nebraska Farmers Union, was singled out for unprecedented action in the NFO business meeting.

The action came in a recommendation by the state NFO officers that read: "We recommend that NFO members not support the Farmers Union until or unless it's leadership develops a closer cooperation with the objectives of NFO."

Tshombe Gives In To Egypt, Gets Green Light To Leave

Cairo (AP)—Premier Moise Tshombe of the Congo bowed to President Gamal Abdel Nasser Thursday and lifted the blockade of the Egyptian and Algerian embassies in Leopoldville. Tshombe then was granted permission to fly home after being held two days.

Barred from attending the Cairo summit conference of nonaligned nations, Tshombe was kept under guard in a suburban palace since he arrived Tuesday despite demands that he stay away.

Nasser had said Tshombe could not leave Cairo until he raised the Leopoldville blockade imposed after his detention.

An authoritative source said Thursday night Tshombe had received permission to leave Cairo any time he desired.

Orders By Phone

On Tshombe's telephoned orders to Leopoldville, the United Arab Republic and Algerian diplomats were permitted to leave their embassies for Brazzaville, capital of the neighboring Congo Republic.

The weird diplomatic hassle seemed near its end.

At the auditorium at Cairo University, speakers continued their "general discussion of the international situation" by denouncing imperialism and colonialism.

'Why JFK Slain'

President Sekou Toure of Guinea stirred the conference by declaring his nation supports "the policy of social integration of Negroes in America, which noble policy is the reason for the murder of John F. Kennedy."

Prime Minister Nirdom Kantol of Cambodia asserted the United States brought on the conflict in South Viet Nam with the communist guerrillas. He said the only solution is "disengagement of the United States and neutralization of this country."

Richard Kawawa, vice president of Tanganyika and Zanzibar, shocked some of his listeners with the sharp observation that independence for Northern Rhodesia later this month would "shove a sharp sword in the belly of the imperialists."

Not even Kenneth Kaunda, who will become president of the new African republic on Oct. 24, had spoken so aggressively about the coming of independence. Kaunda was not present when Kawawa spoke.

Rusk Protests Election Not Influencing Policies

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk protested Thursday against any assertion that administration decisions of Viet Nam could be influenced by election campaign considerations.

Also in reply to Republican critics, Rusk said the previous GOP administration rather than the Democrats should be blamed for Cuba's shift to communism.

Rusk told a news conference that South Viet Nam presents major issues of war and peace and this is "not a matter which any president of the United States can deal with on electoral terms."

No Ballot Ties

Stressing that the United States remains deeply committed to the security of Southeast Asia, Rusk said that this commitment "has nothing to do with our electoral process here."

"We are not concealing anything, or postponing, or marking time, or refusing to make the decisions that are required," he said.

Former Vice President Richard Nixon said in Chicago Wednesday that South Viet Nam might be lost within a year, and all Southeast Asia within three years, unless there is a change in U.S. policy.

Decisions

The United States, Rusk said, is making the necessary decisions "on a day-by-day, and week-by-week basis in consultation with the South Vietnamese government."

Rusk said it is impossible to be a prophet in connection with Southeast Asia especially as Communist North Viet Nam and Communist China "are writing the scenario."

On Cuba the secretary was asked about a speech Republican vice presidential candidate William E. Miller made in Miami Wednesday. Miller said the Johnson administration is pursuing a policy of "accommodation" with the Castro regime.

'Prevention'

"The present administration was not responsible for the prevention of Communist Cuba," Rusk said.

"We were confronted with the problem of cure, and the cure is more difficult than prevention," he added.

Rusk said he is encouraged that other countries in the Western Hemisphere have recognized the communist threat from Cuba.

'Very Serious'

"If the Cuban government continues with any program of interference with other countries in this hemisphere, then I think we shall have a very serious situation," Rusk declared.

Rusk also made the following points:

—He in effect warned President Sukarno of Indonesia that "if there is an attack on the Philippines from any quarter, that is an attack on the United States."

—Commenting on the situation in Cairo where Moise Tshombe, the Congo's premier, is a virtual prisoner after attempting to attend the conference of nonaligned nations, Rusk said, "It is of some concern . . . that in an international meeting delegates undertake to determine who shall represent governments invited to the meeting." Such an attempt, he added, could "give rise to a great many complications in the very structure of international affairs."

U.S. Copter 'Probably' Killed 3 Viet Soldiers

Saigon (UPI) — American military sources said Thursday that covering fire from a U.S. Army helicopter probably killed three Vietnamese government soldiers accidentally and may have wounded others Wednesday in combat action west of Saigon.

The authoritative U.S. sources, however, denied contentions by Vietnamese officers that as many as 25 Vietnamese troops may have been killed by error in the confused action.

The American sources said the HU1B helicopter, using rocket and machine-gun fire, was trying to provide cover for another copter that crashed and burned, killing all five Americans aboard.

The second helicopter was forced down by ground fire from Viet Cong guerrillas. But the sources said it possibly also had been fired at by government soldiers who were trying to divert the deadly rockets.

From the air, the black-clad Vietnamese troops apparently resembled the communist guerrillas who usually wear black, pajama-like suits. The fact that government troops and communist forces were at extremely close quarters on the battlefield added to the confusion.

The U.S. sources said their information was based on the results of an official investigation ordered by the headquarters of the U.S. Military Assistance Command in South Viet Nam.

The inquiry was ordered Wednesday after a Vietnamese officer filed a report saying U.S. helicopters were responsible for the greater part of the casualties his unit suffered in the engagement.

Lemnitzer Won't Talk

Norfolk, Va. (AP)—Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, NATO's supreme allied commander in Europe, declined Thursday to confirm or deny that he has contingent authority to use tactical nuclear weapons.

"The subject of control of nuclear weapons is primarily political, extremely complex and highly classified," he told a news conference on his arrival at Norfolk to address the Armed Forces Staff College.

"It is a subject not appropriate for me as supreme allied commander of Europe to discuss publicly," he said.

Major Issue

The topic has been a major issue in the presidential campaign.

As early as the New Hampshire primary, Sen. Barry Goldwater had suggested that NATO field commanders be given discretionary authority to retaliate with "small, tactical nuclear weapons."

He subsequently repeated the suggestion, and Democrats hopped on it, saying the Republican presidential candidate was "trigger-happy."

'Ike And JFK'

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said the suggestion was not new, that former President Eisenhower and the late President Kennedy had worked out contingency arrangements with NATO commanders.

Eisenhower declined to comment on this and expressed regret that it had become a campaign issue.

Last month, Adm. Harold Page Smith, NATO's supreme allied commander Atlantic, said flatly that only the president of the United States should have the power and responsibility to order employment of nuclear weapons — "no matter what size."

Rusk Spurns Talk Of Surface N-Fleet

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk brushed off as premature Thursday the prospect that the United States and West Germany might have to go it alone if the proposed nuclear surface fleet for NATO is to become a reality soon.

"This is a contingency that has not yet arisen," Rusk declared in refusing to discuss the prospect at his news conference.

The question was raised against a background of (1) word that NATO military experts have decided the proposed fleet would not be vulnerable to destruction by the Soviets, and (2) reports that the West German government is pressing the United States to nail down a final agreement on the project by year's end even if the other allies do not join.

Eight countries are discussing in London and Paris provisions of a proposed treaty providing for about 25 surface ships carrying a total of 200-long-range Polaris missiles with nuclear warheads.

These countries are the United States, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Turkey and Greece.

Government sources here told the Associated Press the NATO experts have agreed unanimously that Russia would not be able to keep track of and knock out all the ships of such a fleet.

Enlarged Role For Laymen Proposed

Vatican City (AP) — Revolutionary proposals to put laymen alongside priests in Roman Catholic Church administration—from the parish to the Vatican — were made Thursday in the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Prelates assembled in St. Peter's Basilica were urged to take even bolder action in giving lay people a bigger role in the church than proposed in a document before the council for debate.

Archbishop Eugene D'Souza of Bhopal, India, assailed the document, a scheme on the apostolate of laity, telling the other prelates, "We must treat laymen as adults."

Clerical Thumbs

"There is no hope for the apostolate of the laity if they are always to remain under the thumb of clerics," he declared.

"Laymen could be used in many offices in the Curia (Vatican-based central administration of the church). Laymen could likewise be employed in the diplomatic service of the Holy See and could even be appointed nuncios (papal ambassadors) in some cases.

"There are countless examples on the parochial, diocesan, national and international levels."

Nearly every important administrative post in the church hierarchy is held by a cleric. But council experts said that in many cases there was no theological basis for this, that it was a result of long custom and thus there was no technical reason why laymen could not hold such posts.

Lay Senates

Auxiliary Bishop Stephen Leven of San Antonio, Tex., called for establishment of lay senates to help individual bishops. He suggested it be modeled on the contemplated senate of bishops to help the pope. The council is considering such a bishops' college, or senate, as a concrete expression of the idea of shared papal-episcopal power.

There already are in the United States some forms of panels or commission of Catholic laymen with bishops to provide technical service or advice.

But Bishop Leven spoke out for a wider form of contact:

"There is no dialogue if the laity are only invited to listen. Nor is there dialogue if the bishop listens only to individuals—such as his doctor or his housekeeper—rather than to truly representative laymen and laywomen."

Both Archbishop D'Souza and Bishop Leven were calling, in effect, for a church placing more stress on democratic processes with a wider degree of integration of laymen with priests.

British Chief Shouted Down

London (AP) — Police had to escort Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home from a political rally in Birmingham Thursday night after he was shouted down by noisy hecklers.

"After this exhibition here," the prime minister said, "I doubt whether people who depend on this kind of support are fit to govern Britain."

Science Minister Quintin Hogg got even rougher treatment. His car was mobbed by a jeering crowd in London and police had to clear a path for him.

A similar point about the booing was made by Hogg, who has been accused by Labor Party chiefs of trying to drag sex into the campaign because of his retort to a heckler who brought up last year's Profumo scandal.

"Smear — Smear," shouted a claque of about two or three hundred young people, many of them students, at a London rally, but Hogg retorted:

"I wonder if you really think you are helping the opposition by this behavior. You are really helping the government."

Later Hogg's temper began to break and he lectured them: "You are making too much noise, you silly asses. You have come to deny me free speech, and you are not going to deny me free speech because I am not going to be muzzled."

Douglas-Home and Hogg both had put their finger on a point that may well be trouling the Labor Party, too. Heckling is an old and honored institution at election meetings, but organized booing is something relatively new, and Labor Party chief Harold Wilson has publicly denounced it lest it backfire against Labor before next Thursday's election.

Wilson himself was heckled persistently at a meeting near Southampton by longshoremen — presumed labor supporters—who disliked some of his remarks about a current dock dispute.

Bettors On Spree

London (AP) — British betting men are pouring it in by the hundreds of thousands of pounds sterling on the outcome of the national election next Thursday.

Betting-wise, it's the biggest electoral rat race in United Kingdom history.

As day dawned, the Labor Party was a steaming 1-2 favorite to unseat the Conservation government, meaning you had to put up 2 of yours to win 1 from the handbook. If you fancied the Conservatives, the book would lay 6 against your 4.

Like Lemmings

Gambling types taking one view or the other were streaming into the legal betting shops like lemmings to the sea.

The biggest single bet so far reported was by Maxwell Joseph, a big man in property and business investment circles.

He has risked 50,000 pounds ($140,000) of his money against 37,500 pounds ($105,000) of Ladbroke's, betting on Labor to win.

That other little election over in the States?

The British books have heard about it. They lay 5 -1 if you want to get aboard Sen. Goldwater. If President Johnson's your pick, you have to put up 8-1.

Churchill Endorses Tories

London (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill made his first—and possibly last—entry into the British election campaign Thursday by calling for another Conservative Party victory next Thursday.

Churchill, 89, is retiring from politics this year after 60 years in the House of Commons. He sent a message to Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home from his Kent countryside home of Chartwell.

"I send you every good wish," the former prime minister wrote. "I am confident the British people will again demonstrate their good sense by returning a Conservative government to office."

In another message to his old constituents in Woodford, Churchill said a Conservative victory was "in the national interest."

Hastings, Union Must Deal On Controversies

. . . Industrial Relations Court Orders

The Nebraska Court of industrial Relations reported Thursday it has ordered the city of Hastings and its Board of Public Works to deal with a union in connection with recent controversies related to wages and other matters.

The court ordered Local 507 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the city to enter into good faith communications designed to "eliminate or define their controversies" and to report to the court by next Jan. 5 "the respects in which said controversies have been eliminated or defined."

The court rejected the city's contention that only actual employes should serve on the employe committee dealing with the city.

The court also ordered the city to rescind a March order of the city which said that supervisors, superintendents and foremen would represent the employes in dealing with the city and its public works board on wages and related matters.

The lengthy opinion and order grew out of a hearing Sept. 14 during which a principal point of issue became the question of whether employes could utilize outsiders in negotiating with the city and its public works board.

The court's majority opinion was signed by Lincoln attorney John R. Baylor, presiding judge of the court, but a separate opinion, dissenting in part, was filed by Judge John M. Gradwohl.

Gradwohl said the court has come up with "the most desirable and effective means" for attempting to settle the dispute. But he said the court has exceeded its authority in requiring a governmental agency acting in a proprietary capacity to discuss or bargain in a nonjudicial setting with its employes or their representatives.

The majority opinion, however, said this:

"In this case we hold only that under the record so far, our ordering the Board of Public Works to negotiate in good faith with the union as the representative of those employes (a group of 67 employes who designated the union as their representative) would be fair, equitable, conducive to efficient operation of the utility and conducive to settlement of all controversies which make up the industrial disputes."

The suit was brought originally by Local 507 against the city and its Board of Public Works. The three-judge industrial relations court subsequently decided that it could not force the city and the union to bargain collectively, but appointed an investigator, Wallace M. Rudolph of the University of Nebraska Law College, to investigate and report.

In the new opinion, the court held that under powers granted it by law, "we shall provide in appropriate cases a means and appropriate environment for discussion of controversies by parties to an industrial dispute."

In its order, the court told the city and union to communicate with each other with a view to eliminating or defining their controversies as they relate to:

1. Appropriateness of procedures for setting wages of utility E employes insofar as these relate to the wages of policemen and firemen.

2. Basic wage rates, classification of workers and wage rates for night work.

3. Standards for determining wage increases.

4. Fringe benefits, including but not limited to sick leave, meal allowances and callback pay.

The court ordered that communications between the city and the union be either written or oral, that each respond to the other "with reasonable promptness."

Meetings of employes as called by the union shall be "on utility time" and under circumstances "no less favorable and convenient to the employes" than previous meetings held with superintendents, supervisors and foremen, the order said.

Woman Gets Probation On Slaying Count

Omaha (AP) — Mrs. Gladys Kauffman, 59, Kansas City, Mo., was placed on two years probation Thursday by District Judge Paul J. Garrotto after she pleaded guilty to being an accessory after the fact in the slaying of an 87-year-old Omaha widow last January.

She was the last person sentenced in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Anna Dunning.

Earlier her husband, William Henry Kauffman, and Walter Edward Frans, both of Kansas City, were sentenced to life terms in the Nebraska penitentiary. They pleaded guilty to first degree murder.

Mrs. Gloria Kirk, also of Kansas City, is serving an 18-month term in the Nebraska Reformatory for conspiracy to commit a felony.

Chief Deputy County Attorney Arthur D. O'Leary said Mrs. Kauffman was involved from the standpoint of coming to Omaha with a trio.

"But we are satisfied Mrs. Kauffman didn't know what happened until after the crime," O'Leary said.

Mrs. Dunning's body was found in her Omaha home a few days after the slaying. Authorities said she had been bound and gagged and the home had been ransacked.

Newman Mute At His Arraignment In Murder Case

O'Neill (UPI)—James K. Newman, Stuart, stood mute during arraignment on first degree murder charges here Thursday and was ordered to stand trial by jury by Holt County District Judge William Smith.

Newman is charged with the fatal shooting of an unarmed town marshal. The law officer, Delbert Addison of Stuart, was shot down the night of Sept. 27 while making his night patrol.

A preliminary hearing was held Oct. 1 and County Judge Frank Cronk ruled there was sufficient evidence for Newman to stand trial in District Court.

Newman has told authorities he argued with Addison because the marshal had arrested Newman's 18-year-old son on a traffic charge and Newman sought the release of the youth.

Addison's wife, who was accompanying him on the night patrol, witnessed the shooting.

During the arraignment Thursday, Judge Smith granted a request by Holt County Atty. William Griffin to be withdrawn from prosecuting the case. Griffin said he planned to appear as a witness during the trial. The court appointed O'Neill attorney Julius D. Cronin as special prosecutor.

Attorney Francis Lee of Atkinson told the court that his client wished to stand mute. Judge Smith said the action meant the same as a plea of innocent, and said Newman will stand trial. No trial date was set.

$6.2 Million In Road Work Asked For Northwest Area

Alliance (AP)—Northwest Nebraskans attending a highway commission information meeting in Alliance Thursday asked for road projects in 15 counties totaling $6.2 million.

Bruce Gillam, State Department of Roads planning engineer, said this compared with $3.6 million allocated to the 15 counties.

There were about 100 persons there.

Among projects requested were:

—Hardsurfacing of Nebraska 61 from Hyannis to Merriman.

—Extension of Nebraska 29 north from Harrison to the South Dakota line.

—Improvement of Nebraska 2 from Hemingford to Alliance and from Antioch to Hemingford.

Scottsbluff City Councilman William A. Nichols also asked for continuation of improvement of the north by-pass project on Scottsbluff's 27th street, help on the South Broadway overpass project, help on the purchase and condemnation and right-of-way and improvement of the Scottsbluff-Mitchell highway with view to making it a four-lane highway.

Gov. Frank Morrison told the group Nebraska spends "more per capital on roads in the rural areas than in the urban areas of Nebraska, and that is how it should be." He said cities can prosper only if rural areas prosper.

He told the group also that Nebraska "couldn't begin to have the degree of improvement we now have" without federal highway aid. "We receive more from the federal government in Nebraska each year than we pay in taxes, and that is how it should be," the governor said.

Mrs. Englehart and her husband George, who died in 1934 at the age of 90, moved to Lincoln in May of 1886 from Marshalltown, Iowa. She was born in Zanesville, Ohio, Jan. 9, 1859.

In 1868 her family had moved by wagon train to southern Iowa and later moved to Mercer Co. Missouri. The Engleharts were married Jan. 26, 1883.

She is survived by numerous nieces and nephews including Mrs. Charles H. Patterson and Charles W. Swingle Sr. of Lincoln.

Services are pending.

Support For Beef Export Council Seen By Baxter

Grand Island (UPI)—Ray Baxter, Grand Island, past president of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, said there is wide bipartisan support among cattlemen for the proposal to establish a national beef export council.

The council proposal was advanced last week by William E. Colwell, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Third District, and endorsed by Governor Morrison.

Baxter said the plan also has the support of State Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, a cattleman.

LBJ Accused Of Not Telling Truth About Agriculture

Des Moines, Iowa (AP)—A Republican "truth squad" accused President Johnson of not telling the truth about farm problems, avoiding discussion of the Viet Nam situation and covering up alleged corruption in the Bobby Baker and Billie Sol Estes cases.

The three-member "truth squad," headed by Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis, made the charges here. The group is following Johnson on the 11-state campaign tour he started Wednesday with a speech here. The other members are Reps. Robert Michel of Illinois and Charles Goodell of New York.

Curtis said their purpose is "to tell the truth and set the record straight" at each place where Johnson speaks.

He declared the administration did not tell the truth when it denied that imports of meat from other nations were largely responsible for depressed livestock prices.

Curtis denied that curbing meat imports might jeopardize markets abroad for other American commodities such as soybeans.

Western Boards Oppose Proposal

Sidney (AP)—Six school boards in Cheyenne County went on record this week as being opposed to the proposed constitutional amendment of education which provides for an elected commissioners of education and an appointive eight-member state board of education.

Joining together to urge that voters vote "301" on Nov. 3 and defeat the proposed amendment are the boards of education of Sidney, Dalton, Gurley, Lodgepole, Potter and Lorenzo.

New Drive In Battle Against Drink Sought

Norfolk (UPI)—The president of the national Woman's Christian Temperance Union Thursday night called for a stepped-up effort in the organization's 90-year battle against drinking.

Mrs. Fred J. Tooze of Evanston, Ill., urged leaders and members of the Nebraska WCTU at their state convention to support the union's new drive for a financial and membership buildup. She said the program over the next decade calls for the enrollment of one million members and the raising of $1 million at the rate of 100,000 members and $100,000 a year.

Mrs. Tooze told the group the expenditure of $14 billion a year by the American people for drink accents the need for a new drive against alcoholic beverages. She said drinking drivers or pedestrians are involved in half the country's automobile accidents, and 1,725,200 arrests are made annually for drunkenness and drunken driving.

She said there is a continuing increase in the number of alcoholics to a near six million, with another six million drinking a half pint or more a day, and 63% of the adult population admitting that they drink.

"Alcoholism is rampant in every walk of American life," Mrs. Tooze said. "It is time for a new crusade for temperance, spiritual standards and public morals, starting with grade school and teen agers."

10 Youths Draw Sentences In Damage To House

Hastings (UPI)—Ten area youths made appearances in County Court this week and were given sentences in connection with the tearing apart of an area farmhouse in a wild party Sept. 19.

About 40 young people in all are charged in connection with the vandalism.

Gary Tuttle, 16, of Harvard, was sentenced to nine months at the Boys Training School at Kearney after pleading guilty to malicious destruction of property and unlawful assembly.

The heaviest sentence meted out by Judge Harry Haverly was a $150 fine for malicious destruction of property and a $50 fine for unlawful assembly for Ronald Shay, 18, of Ayr. Shay was also sentenced to 15 days in the county jail, but that part of the sentence was suspended providing he make restitution for damages.

Eight other youths were fined a total of $300 on charges of disturbing the peace. More of the young people were expected in court later this week.

The group is charged with staging the party at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Borrell near here while the Borrell family was absent. They hired a dance combo to play for the party, but the house was already in shambles when the combo arrived.

Damage to personal property and plumbing alone was estimated at over $1,000.

Business School Due For Sidney

Sidney (AP)—A Kansas City commerce school organization has leased space here for a business school.

Howard V. Lile, president of Draughton's College of Commerce, said the school will open next spring with his son, Howard C. Lile, in charge. The school is to be known as the Business Institute of Sidney, Neb.

The Draughton organization also is establishing a school in St. Louis, Mo.

Howard C. Lile said the Sidney school has a goal of 75 to 100 students initially.

Good Policy Improved

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The Lincoln Board of Education has improved on what was already a good policy. It had a long-standing rule against solicitations through the schools for any commercial venture. Now, it has gone a little further and eliminated any solicitations of either students or teachers on school property. This has been a policy that has undoubtedly kept the Lincoln school system out of much hot water.

It is doubtful that a week goes by in which someone doesn't have some proposal for getting to parents through the school children. The purpose, of course, is obvious. For one thing, use of students as carriers or go-betweens would be a great convenience. Secondly, going through the students would give the impression of school approval of whatever the program or project might be. Finally, parents are in their most susceptible frame of mind when it comes to something having to do with their children.

Best Path To Parents

The parent might quickly turn away a salesman from the door but give careful examination to something brought home from school. If such activity were permitted, the schools would be a wholesale center of commercialism. Every school in the city would be deluged by people attempting to use the students as a means of getting to the parents.

Also, the school administration would find itself beset with other problems. It would find that it could not give what all concerned would agree was equal treatment. Commercial interests would be at odds with the administration over such things as time available to them, open days for solicitation, methods of approaching the students, etc.

To eliminate solicitations entirely from school property is an extension of a good principle. It removes one more area of possible contention and, it seems, would leave the schools entirely free from any possible accusations of favoritism or underhanded dealings. The strong position of the Lincoln system on this subject is one of the things that has helped create in the mind of the public the good impression it has of public education here. When the school year opened this summer, Superintendent Steven N. Watkins spoke of the most fortunate support given the schools by the people of Lincoln.

He reminded all teachers that they were a part of a system in which the people never hesitated to do what was essential to guarantee the best educational opportunities possible. He was thinking, as he spoke, of the long history of support given by Lincoln to the bond issues that have been proposed in recent years. Not a single issue has ever been turned down and none of them has even come close to defeat. And taxpayer complaint against the ever rising school district tax levy simply is not heard. In recent years, the schools, not only in Lincoln but throughout the state and nation, have assumed a dominant role in our tax structure. They have come in for a greater and greater share of this tax income but have run into little public criticism. A large part of the explanation for this widespread public acceptance in Lincoln is found in the kind of thoughtful administration shown in the solicitations matter.

Also on the positive side in the news this week is the report of the Legislative Council State Office Space Committee. The report of this group is approximately as important as its name is long and that makes it of no mean significance. The group has called for a one-fourth mill special levy to produce some $750,000 a year as an accumulating fund to construct a new state office building in the early 1970's.

It would have been strange had the study group come up with any other recommendation as the Statehouse has been cramped for some time now. The Highway Department, for instance, is scheduled to move out of the Statehouse and into new quarters by the end of 1965.

There are a great many other agencies of state government that are getting by with physical plant facilities that impair their efficiency and effectiveness. Even the corridors of the state's famous Capitol have not been saved from the demands for additional room. Too, the state has had to go outside the Capitol in some cases to provide adequate quarters for operations that could not be facilitated in that building. All of this crowding and disbursement on the part of state functions are costly and inconvenient to the public.

Bulging At Seams

The accumulation of a building fund before the situation takes on emergency proportions—and this is not far off—is the only intelligent approach to the subject. There is no question that Nebraska is in the minority among the states in not having taken this step long before now.

How About A Little Reform?

Early last January the big news was about the rioting in Panana. Three U.S. soldiers and some 20 Panamanians were killed.

The trouble started on the high school grounds in the Canal Zone over the raising of the Panamanian and American flags. After that, angry Panamanians, urged on by professional provacateurs, made a national affair of it, fired on defending American troops and destroyed considerable American property. Out of it came extravagant demands on the part of Panama. When the U.S. government remained adamant Panama retreated in its demands. Thus far there has been no settlement. Why?

The best reason perhaps is that it is election year in both countries. Last week Marco Aurelio Robles was inaugurated president of Panama. Our election will be Novemer 3. That means that after the first of the year the Panama question will come alive again.

Panama has suffered severe economic setbacks since the rioting. The tourist business fell to nothing and capital took flight. Any settlement, therefore, can be expected to call for U.S. aid. But Robles who represents but is not a member by birth of the oligarchy which owns most of Panama, and rules its government, should be reminded that his group causes more poverty than we can relieve.

This time it seems a good idea to clean up Panama at home with a little economic liberalization, instead of just billing us.

Most Welcome Action

What a welcome thing it is to have state government showing the kind of leadership displayed in the announced plan by Gov. Frank Morrison for implementation of the new federal Economy Opportunity Act. This is what is more commonly known as the anti-poverty program.

It has been quite a long time, it seems, since the state government has been the first to act in any area of public concern and welfare. Generally, the state needs to be prodded, pushed and coerced into action but Morrison has proceeded in this case on his own initiative.

This is the kind of leadership that Nebraska needs, the kind that does not sit back and wait for the roof to fall in before fixing the leak. This is the kind of action from the governor's office we have always dreamed of and if it is a sample of what we can now expect, our choice of Morrison in the coming election is without question.

In implementing the Economic Opportunity Act for Nebraska, Morrison is opening the door of opportunity to communities and individuals from our Missouri River border through the Panhandle. Through this act, Nebraska can greatly strengthen many of the weak spots that now exist in our economy.

Through this act, many things can be accomplished for this state that would otherwise never see the light of day. With timely action, Nebraska can become one of the first states to move out ahead rather than one of the last, as has so often been the case in the past. Perhaps we have really tapped the vitality that has simmered below the surface of Nebraska under one average governor after another.

Honored For Usefulness

All presidents of the United States suffer from a common affliction—gifts.

Any day a president can wake up expecting a small elephant, a carload of apples, some trees to plant where there is no space for them, 200 turkeys for Sunday dinner and a further infinite variety of household size things, all of which must be accepted graciously because the spirit of the giver is much better than his judgment.

All the more reason why President Johnson will now probably be an undying friend of the understanding President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines. Good old "Mac" brought a present when he arrived for his recent visit. But he made sure that it was too big for the White House and which was not of such a nature as to provide a problem for the White House grounds.

He gave the president of the United States a ship of no particular intrinsic value.

It was the last square rigger sailing ship constructed in the United States. The ship was given the name of Kaiulani when it was launched in 1899 for the Hawaiian-U.S. sugar trade. Kaiulani was the name of the heir to the Hawaiian throne who died while the ship was abuilding.

The ship plied its orderly way between U.S. and Hawaiian ports until 1910 bringing sweetness, if not light, to the American people. Then the faster and bigger steamships ran it off the mainline. After that it sailed between Alaska and the U.S. for the salmon industry.

The ship went about doing good all of its life and never struck a blow in anger. But it got into the Pacific war. The Navy stripped it to the hull and made a coal barge of it after it had served a brief stint in the Pacific as a lumber hauler. As a collier it provided coal for the fighting ships while shot and shell sailed by overhead. Somehow it wound up dockside in the Philippines. Now it is being refitted with splendid sail and will be brought to the U.S. by a volunteer American crew. It will make port permanently on the shores of the Potomac, honored at last as the useful, unangry American.

Congress Foils Discipline Try

WASHINGTON — A little-noticed but very important battle took place in the last hectic hours of the 88th Congress. It pertained to the question on which there has been great public discussion, inside and outside Congress, the ethics of congressmen.

Do they set a separate standard for themselves while demanding that others obey the law? Do members of the "Club" make money from their law firms which the average lawyer could not do under the rules of the American Bar Association? Do they probe mink coats, hams and deep freezes while taking Cadillacs themselves on the side?

These were some of the questions raised during backstage huddles in the House of Representatives when a freshman congressman, Don Edwards of San Jose, Calif., sought to show that congressmen should live up to their own rules.

Mr. Edwards had before him a recent decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals that Congress should discipline itself. The Justice Department had convicted a Democratic congressman from the eastern shore of Maryland, Tom Johnson, for making a speech in the House of Representatives when he had received a law fee for going to bat on the matter involved in his speech.

The court of appeals, 4th circuit, reversed the conviction, noting that it was up to Congress to discipline its own members.

☆ ☆ ☆

So Rep. Edwards, knowing that Rep. William E. Miller, R.-N.Y., who now aspires to be vice president, had done exactly the same thing, tried to make a speech about it. Edwards took seriously the admonition of the Court of Appeals that Congress should discipline itself, and also looked up various precedents, beginning with Jefferson's manual and rules of the House of Representatives which states:

"Where the private interests of a member are concerned in a bill or queston he is to withdraw . . . not only to the laws of decency but to the fundamental principle of the social compact, which denies to any man to be a judge of his own case, it is for the honor of the House that this rule . . . be strictly adhered to."

Edwards also looked up modern Rule VIII of the House which states: "every member . . . shall vote on each question unless he has a direct personal or pecuniary interest in the event of such question."

Congressman Edwards knew that Rep. Miller had made speeches and voted on the question of a tariff on the raw materials of felt at the same time he was receiving $7,500 from the Lockport Felt Co., and was a major stockholder in Lockport holdings, a wholly-owned affiliate of Lockport felt. He owned one-fourth of the latter company.

☆ ☆ ☆

So since Mr. Miller apparently had violated the rules of the House and since Mr. Miller further aspired to the No. 2 job in the nation, the young congressman from California decided to call the rules to the attention of fellow congressmen.

Next day the courageous California congressman did battle. But in the interim he began to get pressure from the "club." The pressure came not from Republicans, but his fellow Democrats.

John Rooney of Brooklyn, faithful member of the club's hierarchy, warned Edwards that he would be blackballed when it came to committee assignments. Also he wouldn't get his private bills passed. Both Republicans and Democrats would gang up on him.

The discouraged freshman finally tossed in his sponge.

Southern Throngs Rally To Lady Bird

Aboard the "Lady Bird Special"—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson is not only drawing big crowds, but also the great Democratic names in the South. And their physical presence by her side clearly identifies them—conservative, moderate and liberal—with the Democratic administration in Washington.

Not since the days of Franklin Roosevelt have so many Southern Democratic leaders openly thrown their lot in with the national ticket.

Mrs. Johnson and the power of the presidency contribute to this result, but it seems apparent the timing of her Southern tour is perfect.

When the Republicans passed the torch to Barry Goldwater, they thought they had a champ like Harry Truman who would give 'em hell and set the grass roots aflame with his good looks and oratorial style.

It didn't work out that way. On the stump, he has been flat. Every time he opens his mouth, he loses votes. The polls add to the gloom.

In the south, where Mrs. Johnson now travels, Goldwater made his greatest pre-convention effort and has his biggest election stakes. Without it, he admittedly loses. The area contributed most to his nomination.

But he is in trouble down here. The conservatives of the South who have—or would like to have—a political future now say they aren't all that anxious to be with a loser.

☆ ☆ ☆

A case in point is Dan K. Moore, the Democratic candidate for governor of North Carolina, who is a conservative if there ever was one. Pondering Goldwater strength in his state, in which he was in some degree of sympathy, Moore had developed a case of political lockjaw, unable to speak the name of his favorite presidential candidate.

He sent his wife and daughter to scout the "Lady Bird Special" at its beginning on the North Carolina border. When they saw the size and enthusiasm of the crowds in the first few North Carolina villages, they didn't wait for word from the head of the family. Mrs. Moore was shouting "Vote the Democratic ticket from top to bottom!" Into the microphones before she caught up with her husband, who had waited until Raleigh was reached to make his first appearance in the company of Mrs. Johnson and her husband, who had flown down from Washington for that event.

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

Little Coins All Gobbled Up

By MONA B. PARKER

Pawnee County families are taking advantage of the pleasant weather, and many have made their yearly visit to the orchard country. Around and about the countryside, too, is evidence that black walnuts are in abundant supply this fall. Local cooks are casting an eye toward recipe book and mixing bowl, with thoughts of the succulent nutmeats in home-made cakes, cookies and candies . . .

☆ ☆ ☆

The Syracuse Journal-Democrat reports on another local crop. Early indications from the corn fields, says the J-D, show descriptions of this year's yield ranging from "phooey" to "more than I expected." And strangely enough, both expressions are in many cases used on the same farm. Heat, dry weather and too much weed killer all played their part in cutting down production.

The crop as a whole, summarized the paper, "won't overtax storage facilities on the farms as have many in the past few years."

Another note of interest was that it had not been a good year for those who fertilized heavily, since moisture is needed badly when fertilizer is used.

☆ ☆ ☆

Duane Kunzman of the Laurel Advocate discussed a shortage of another sort, with a logical theory on what might very well be at least a partial cause . . .

Mr. Kunzman agrees that there is a coin shortage, and he thinks the answer fairly evident. He points to the many items available today through vending machines that weren't on the scene 10 years ago.

The shortage stacks up this way. Some vending machines are emptied perhaps only once a week. In a city of some size, one can only imagine how many coins would be taken out of circulation for a week's time.

The production by U.S. mints has not been increased to offset this one big factor, and thus the country finds itself in a sudden bind for small change.

Mrs. Joe Heitz of the Schuyler Sun comments on the political overtone that favors most newscasts and conversation these days . . .

We haven't much choice between now and election, she says, except to "listen to who is tearing whom apart each day." Both sides stoutly maintain they want a clean campaign, but "there are varying shades of cleanliness even to tattletale gray."

An independent note is to be seen on both sides, also. "Folks just ain't about to 'vote her straight' unless they are a mind to."

☆ ☆ ☆

Bob Morris bemoans something in the Wymore Arbor State that has been a mounting regret with many of us . . .

"There was a time, which apparently is gone forever, when a 'poor' man not only could run for the highest offices, but also considered it an attribute to be poor."

☆ ☆ ☆

Sticks and stones and words . . . they all hurt sometime . . . and young Jack Smith of Shelton has come through again on his annual bone-breaking record just as school begins. This year it was his right foot. Former years at this same time have included his left foot two times, his wrist once and once a finger. The Clipper advises him: "Stay in bed! Never set foot out the door!"

A Pawnee City family has found a rather unusual and practical use for one of the most difficult and cumbersome items around any household to dispose of. They have placed two old mattresses against the back wall of their garage. Thus, if some member of the family—and guess probably which one?—does a poor job of estimating drive-in speed, or over-estimates the length of the garage, or both, the mattresses will cushion the blow to the rear wall—and also to the husband's nerves.

Looking Back

Lincoln, Neb.

I want to compliment you for attempting to tell where Goldwater stands. (It would be much easier to tell where he stood.) His position is about as stable as Nebraska weather.

On Page 40 of Goldwater's book, "The Conscience of a Conservative," he says that the teaching of the Constitution on this matter is perfectly clear. No power over agriculture was given to any branch of the national government. He also says, on Page 42, that farm production, like any other production, is best controlled by the natural operation of the free market.

These statements lead me to believe that he would with one stroke end all programs if he were elected. But now you say he says he would favor a gradual reduction in four or five years. How he intends to reduce on the fifth year is a question.

To find out whether something is any good or not, the best way is to go back before you had it. For example, is the electric light any good? Just go back to the coal oil lamp and the pump handle. Are farm programs any good? In 1932 we didn't have farm programs. Corn was 9c per bushel, wheat 23c, hogs 3c, cattle 5c. Millions and millions of people were out of work, sheriffs were being lynched and thousands of farmers marched through the Statehouse.

To say that farm programs did no good is just as sensible as saying that irrigation is no good because next year, you are going to have to do it all over again. The question in both cases is, what would it have been last year without it?

If Goldwater is as enamored with Ezra Benson as he says he is, it would be only logical to assume he would reinstate him to his former position of secretary of agriculture.

Future Needs

Lincoln, Neb.

Mr. Robert A. Wekesser, member of the Lincoln Board of Education, last week stated that the fine, embryonic program of the teaching of French in the elementary grades may have to be abandoned because of "administrative difficulties."

At the same time a full-page advertisement for one of our nation's leading corporations emphasized: "If we are to help solve the world's gigantic economic problems, we must understand, respect and learn to do business with more than three billion people, almost all of whom have different colored skins, different languages and different religions than ours."

Similarly, Supt. Steven N. Watkins stated in a welcoming speech to district teachers Sept. 8, 1964, that the masses of our democracy must not be left to face a world which they may be incapable of understanding or in which they are less than a vital part.

Surely, then, both the capable businessmen who comprise our Board of Education and our superintendent of schools, who foresee the future needs of our children, will not be willing to see the beginning of a workable foreign language program in our elementary schools sacrificed for administrative expediency.

Support for a foreign language program, whose need is obviously acknowledged on national and local levels, must be considered less than genuine when left to voluntary classes conducted during before or after school hours.

Right To Know

Hastings, Neb.

America's greatest menace is not communism, nor any potential foreign foe. Rather, America's greatest menace is non-resident ownership of farm land. I know of Nebraskans who would not move on to the very best equipped farm if it were to be offered to them as a gift, if they had to live on the farm and actually work the land. But many farm families who love the farm and its work cannot buy the land. And it will be noticed that in Nebraska, the farm lands are geting into the hands or ownership of a smaller number of Nebraskans.

There had been much talk about the land of the Naval Ammunition Depot's being sold in tracts of 240 acres or less to GI's, but when some of that land was sold, it was bought by well-to-do individuals.

Seven civilizations passed into oblivion, due to the neglect of agriculture. So America's problem is not so much to increase the productivity of the soil, as to keep the farmers on their farms.

I have contended that a farmer should have the right to expect at least a 5 percent return on every dollar invested in land, equipment, livestock, poultry and buildings, and a wage equal to the wages of the most experienced farm help, and also pay for the farmer's management. It can be imagined how far I got with that idea! And yet, there is not an economist who would dare to say that my thought is unreasonable. Though I do not like to see any group go out on strike—and I especially disliked the idea that the NFO withheld their livestock from the large markets of the country—yet I must admit that their goals of getting large packing houses to make a price contract with the NFO is fully as reasonable as organized labor's going out on strike, or threatening to strike if management does not come through with working contracts to suit organized labor.

Farmers should have as much right to know what the price of their products will be a year from now as labor organizations have the right to know what the wages of their members will be a year from now, so far as humanly possible.

Farmers have to pay for articles made by union labor, so union labor should have no objection to paying organized farmers the price the farmers should have for their products. A fair exchange is no robbery.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

"Ear, nose or throat?"

Democrat Swenson Faces Double Problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth in a series of stories on candidates whose names will appear on the ballots Nov. 3.)

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Tall, deep-voiced Democratic attorney Richard Swenson of Omaha faces a double problem in his bid for Nebraska's Second District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In a four-county eastern Nebraska district dominated by populous Omaha and Douglas County, Swenson to win must (1) get out the Democratic vote and (2) get it to vote Democratic.

RICHARD SWENSON

Douglas County's latest voter registration figures show Democrats holding an ever-expanding 20,000-vote bulge over Republicans. Democrats now number 91,000, while registered Republicans total 71,000. But Douglas County has been electing Republican congressmen like clockwork every two years since 1950.

Four-term incumbent Republican Rep. Glenn Cunningham has been particularly effective in riddling Democratic strength in the four South Omaha wards, where registered Democrats outnumber Republicans by roughly 29,000 to 12,000. This is the home of the world's largest stockyards, where organized labor is king—and South Omaha native Glenn Cunningham has arduously wooed and won the labor vote in past elections.

Hopes For Change

Swenson is hoping that a couple of strong issues and Barry Goldwater may change all that in 1964.

The issues: Cunningham's outburst of criticism denouncing the hiring of Dr. Leland E. Traywick as president of the University of Omaha, and legislative reapportionment.

In the coming weeks, Swenson will also be pushing for development of a major outdoor recreation center within easy driving distance of Omaha and its environs.

Brilliant, 43-year-old Dick Swenson, who stands 6-3½ and moves among his district's potential voters with an easy manner, is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School where he was not only editor of the Law Review, but graduated first in his class.

Later a law clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, he has practiced law in Omaha for 16 years. Swenson is best known as a member of the Omaha School Board for 11 years, and he served as its president from 1961 through 1962.

Good Campaigner

Knowledgeable and an excellent speaker, he has also turned out to be quite a campaigner.

Driving south along the Big Mo to Plattsmouth one bright fall afternoon, he swept into town, parked his convertible, armed himself with campaign cards and bumper stickers, and invaded the business district.

Richard Swenson

Office	Congress, Second District
Party	Democratic
Age	43
Occupation	Attorney

Relentlessly, he moved into cafes and soda shops and bars, automobile showrooms and filling stations, beauty shops, business offices and the newspaper plant, stopping to shake hands with everyone in sight, smiling, introducing himself and asking for "one more vote."

Plattsmouth's big 33rd annual Kass Kounty King Korn Karnival would get underway that night, and Swenson made the most of the wandering crowds.

Unwilling to miss a soul, he disappeared into cafe kitchens, basements and store rooms—and peeked under a hair dryer to deliver his message to one startled captive customer.

That evening, Swenson stood before 39 Young Democrats in the Student Union on the landscaped University of Omaha campus, and held forth on the issues.

Cunningham's attack on Traywick and the OU Board of Regents, he said, was "character assassination," and it reminded him of Joe McCarthy.

Cunningham, Swenson noted, is an advisor to the Young Americans for Freedom, "a junior John Birch Society whose godfather was William Buckley and which was formed to help nominate Barry Goldwater." Omaha's congressman is also a favorite of the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action, Swenson reminded his listeners.

Turning to the apportionment issue—which could conceivably catch fire in the only Nebraska city now "under-represented" in the Unicameral—he promised to oppose any constitutional amendment which would destroy the one-man-one-vote principle established by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Without that kind of apportionment, he noted, "we in Omaha are second-class citizens."

Cunningham voted to remove legislative apportionment jurisdiction from the federal courts. Swenson pointed out.

The real question in apportionment, he said, is: "Are we going to reflect a changing society, or stop the course of history?"

Ironically, Swenson noted, so-called states-righters would block the court's directives, yet "refusal to apportion equally will weaken states rights for it will render state legislatures ineffective to solve the problems of urban America, and thus place even more emphasis on Washington."

But the secret weapon in the Second District Congressional battle could be Barry Goldwater, and the fact that Douglas County Democrats may find him unpalatable and return to the fold.

The last time a Democratic presidential nominee won Douglas County was 1948. And that just happens to be the last time it elected a Democratic congressman, too.

Bus Service Tussle Before State Court

State Supreme Court judges heard arguments Wednesday on the request of American Buslines Inc., that the court overturn a Nebraska Railway Commission ruling which granted the Greyhound Corp. a license to operate a direct bus service between Lincoln and Grand Island.

Bert Overcash, attorney for America Buslines, claimed the competition from Greyhound would result in "severe economic damage" to American.

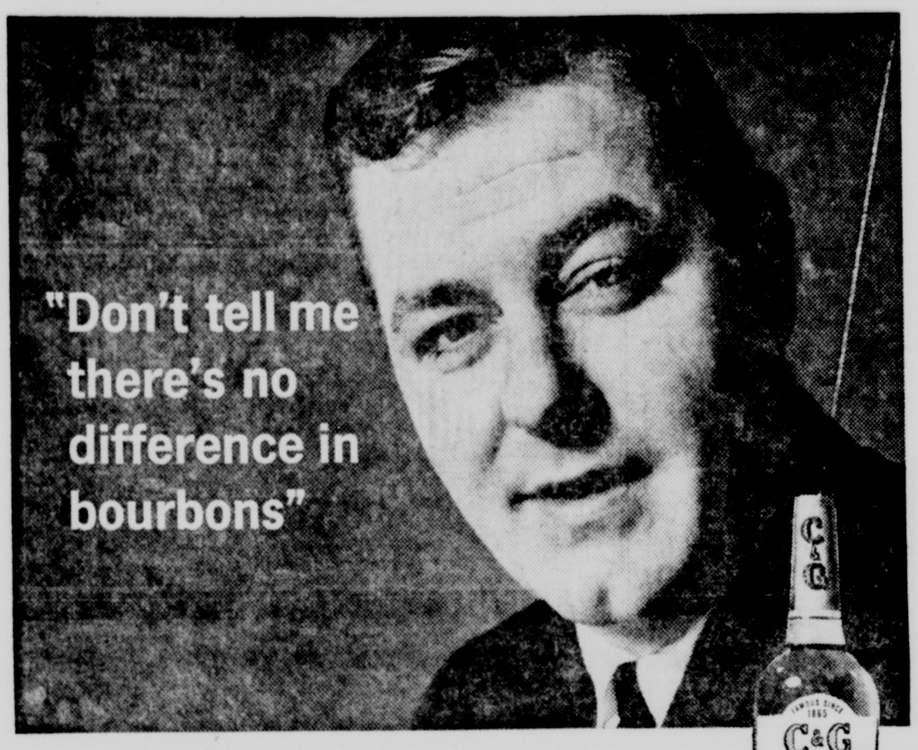

"I ask that the court reverse the commission's decision because the Greyhound application is a duplication of services already provided by American," Overcash told the judges. "This court has the duty to protect present carrier schedules in the public interest."

James Ryan, Greyhound attorney said there is no reason why the court should rule against the commission.

"The commission's order is well written and well prepared," he said. "The commissioners carefully weighed the public testimony, Greyhound's proposals and American's schedules before passing judgment."

He said the overturning of the commission's decision would give American "monopolistic protection."

ISSUES—1964:

Power Poses Question

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln city charter amendment removing the 10-mile limit of the city light department's service area will appear on a special ballot Nov. 3.

The amendment, proposed by the City Council, is considered non-controversial, but important in connection with the city and Consumers Public Power District negotiations regarding the District's Lincoln district electrical distribution system.

Portions of the Lincoln district, operated by Consumers, are outside the 10-mile limit which the charter now imposes on the city's electrical utility but not on sewer or water utilities.

City officials note that state law now provides for determination of service areas between the various municipalities, rural and public power districts.

Mayor Dean Petersen says the charter amendment merely removes any stumbling block to any city negotiations on service area agreements in the future.

He points out the charter amendment has no direct bearing on any future proposition that may be presented regarding the acquisition of Consumers' Lincoln distribution system by the city.

ISSUES—1964:

Municipal Judge's Retention On Ballot

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Municipal Judge Richard O. Johnson is seeking re-election to a six-year term, but Municipal Judge John Jacobson will retire Jan. 1.

Johnson's name will appear on the Nov. 3 ballot with the proposition: "Shall Judge Richard O. Johnson be retained in office for an additional term of six years?"

Vacanies in office, whether from retirement, resignation or will of the voters, are filled by the governor from appointive candidates recommended by a special judicial committee.

Johnson, 71, has served two four-year elected terms on the municipal bench. He was mayor of Lincoln from 1941 to 1943, a councilman from 1937 to 1941 and a state legislator from 1927 to 1931.

Jacobson, 73, has served as a municipal judge since 1952.

Lincoln's municipal judges, like the district judges and Supreme Court justices, are appointed under a state constitutional amendment adopting the so-called Missouri Plan for appointment of judges.

Humphrey, Barry To Seek Votes At Corn-Picking Site

Sioux Falls, S.D. (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Democratic vice presidential candidate, will make a major farm speech at the National Corn Picking Contest here Oct. 16.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Johnson's heavy schedule does not permit a visit to Sioux Falls but, "We are fortunate in securing the services of Sen. Humphrey, a distinguished native son."

The Republican candidate for President, Sen. Barry Goldwater, also will make a speech at the contest.

Dr. Reifschneider To Speak Sunday

Dr. Henry Reifschneider, president of the Minnesota Council of Churches, will deliver sermons at 10:20 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sunday at St. John's United Church of Christ, 945 New Hampshire. Dr. Reifschneider is a former member of St. John's Church.

An incorrect date for his appearance here was given in last week's Sunday Journal and Star.

HEIRESS, CHAUFFEUR UNION DISSOLVED WITH ANNULMENT

New York (AP)—Heiress Gamble Benedict Thursday won annulment of her four-year marriage to ex-chauffeur Andre Porumbeanu. She described him as a lecher, a leech and a drunk.

The 39-year-old Porumbeanu, Romanian-born, was denied visitation rights of any kind with their two children. He did not contest the annulment action.

Gamble testified that her husband had no regular job and that she spent at least $500,000 to support him during the marriage. She told of drinking bouts in which Porumbeanu started off with beer, interspersed scotch and brandy, then switched to wine and tapered off with beer. She said he was in a "continuous state of alcoholism."

The heiress testified further that a 17-year-old German nursemaid was aborted earlier this year of Porumbeanu's child, and that when she nad girl friends visiting overnight he tried to get into their rooms.

"I had to stay up nights," she continued. "I had a terrifying relationship with him . . . He always talked about other women before friends and guests. I assumed it was a European affectation."

The 23-year-old Gamble, who fell in love with Porumbeanu while he still was married to his first wife, claimed in her suit that his Mexican divorce was illegal, and that he still is married to Mrs. Helen Porumbeanu.

The first wife, a short, attractive blonde, testified briefly in Gamble's behalf that she never agreed to the Mexican divorce.

Vested Interests Oppose Accounts Shift: Studnicka

Legislative candidate James Studnicka said he supports the constitutional amendment which would permit the state's accounting procedures to be modernized.

Running in the new 26th district, Studnicka said, "Under the present system, every one of the state's dozens of departments has its own private bookeeping system. This results in a waste of tax dollars, the impossibility of any effective centralized program, and absolute inefficiency in the state warrant writing procedures."

Studnicka pointed out that under the present system, the Secretary of State, who keeps no financial records of any kind has to approve all vouchers for the state even though he may not have the foggiest idea what the vouchers are for.

"Without the passage of this amendment, Number 5, the state can never put its fiscal records on an electronic data processing system. Certain vested interests in the state capitol are opposing the amendment because they want to protect their personal dynasties," he charged.

Groups By Dozen Endorse Nominees

Washington (AP) — Republicans claim the veterinarian vote, Democrats pitch a plea at pilots who want "men of vision at the controls of our country."

Of course the Republicans have their own outfit of pilots —plus a crew of stewardesses for Sen. Barry Goldwater, a pilot himself.

On the other hand, they haven't matched the "artists and entertainers" for President Johnson and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

All in all, it's a great year for the joiner as the citizens' organizations plugging for Goldwater and for Johnson battle to close the group gap. The deluge of announcements already is in the dozens, and there are more to come before election day.

Scientists for LBJ

The Democrats have lined up scientists and engineers for Johnson-Humphrey, with a headquarters and big signs right across Connecticut Ave. from the home of Citizens for Goldwater-Miller.

Johnson's men have lined up outfits of senior citizens, political scientists—and some interlocking organizations. There is a group of district attorneys for Johnson-Humphrey, as well as a national lawyers committee. Educators for Johnson-Humphrey are augmented at the college level by professors for the Democratic team.

The Goldwater forces have set up shop for sportsmen, radio hams, physicians and dentists for Goldwater—along with a string of ethnic groups.

3-Hyphen Outfit

One of the latter sort is called Syrian-and-Lebanese-Americans for Goldwater-Miller. That three-hyphen outfit was announced on Oct. 7 — while Goldwater campaigned in the Philadelphia suburbs with a plea in behalf of "the forgotten American . . ."

Take, for example, the observations of F. Clifton White, director of citizens for Goldwater-Miller, on the veterinarian vote.

"I am certain that every veterinarian in the country . . . must have cringed at the sight of Lyndon Johnson picking up one of his beagles by the ears," White said. "And I would not be surprised if those beagle yelps didn't bring the entire veterinarian community into the Goldwater-Miller camp."

GM Lags In Car Output

Detroit (AP) — A United Auto Workers strike against General Motors continued Thursday as the automotive giant's chief competitors — Ford and Chrysler—scored production gains on 1965 models.

With the strike nearing the end of its second week, Ford already had overtaken GM in the output of new cars and Chrysler was creeping up.

Before the walkout of more than a quarter-million UAW members shut down its assembly lines Sept. 25, GM had produced a total of 285,000 new Chevrolets, Buicks, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles and Cadillacs.

A spokesman for Ford told the Associated Press his company hit the 293,000 mark last Friday and expects the total to climb to 342,000 by the end of this week.

At Chrysler, estimated production of 1965s will reach 185,000 by week's end. With a weekly turnout of more than 26,000 models, a continuation of the GM strike for another month would move Chrysler up a notch to the No. 2 spot.

Smokers Run Heart Risk, Even Ladies

New York (AP) — Women who smoke cigarettes run twice the risk of having heart attacks as women who don't, a new study suggested Thursday.

Numerous surveys have indicated that male smokers face higher risk of heart trouble than non-smokers.

This was termed the first observation of a similar kind of risk among women smokers.

The study conducted by the Health Insurance Plan of greater New York was described to the American Public Health Association by Sam Shapiro, the plan's director of research and statistics.

Continuing Survey

He presented these preliminary results from a continuing eight-year survey, started in 1961, among 110,000 members in the plan, aged 25 to 64:

Men smokers generally face twice the risk of coronary heart diseases as non-smokers, he said.

They seem to have twice the risk of developing angina pectoris.

Men smoking two packs daily seem to have six times the risk of heart attacks than non-smokers.

Men who had stopped smoking at any time in the previous five years were found to have about the same risk of heart attacks as those who had never smoked.

Food For Peace Points Disturb LBJ

Indianapolis, Ind. (UPI) — President Johnson Thursday signed into law a bill extending the Food-for-Peace program for another two years but said he was concerned about some of its "undesirable" and "disturbing" features.

The chief executive issued a statement hailing the program as a vital part of American foreign policy which benefits the United States and nations overseas.

The program permits sale of government-owned surplus farm products for foreign currencies.

"I am very happy to sign this bill," Johnson said. But he added several qualifications in a statement issued by the White House as Johnson was campaigning here.

"Two provisions are particularly undesirable," Johnson said. "One seeks to give either the House Committee on Agriculture or the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry a veto power over certain proposed dispositions of foreign currencies accruing from sales under Public Law 480

"The other seeks to prevent the President from making certain loans at interest rates below a specified level unless he has the concurrence of an advisory committee composed in part of members of Congress and in part of his own executive appointees."

"Both such provisions represent a clear violation of the constitutional principle of separation of powers," the President said.

"However I appreciate the desire of the Congress to be informed and to be consulted on the operations of all aspects of the program, and I am directing that executive officials see that this is done."

Amendment Rally Slated In Omaha

Some 30 busloads of people from all over the state will attend a rally in Omaha Oct. 10 for the constitutional amendment to provide for an elective state education commissioner.

S. H. Brauer Jr. said the rally will be held in the Music Hall of the civic auditorium at 2 p.m.

Principal speaker will be Dr. M. Rafferty, who is the elected superintendent of public instruction in California.

Dorm Leaders Elected

Dianne Gillespie, O'Neill, Neb., and Judy Crees, Waukee, Iowa, have been selected as presidents of the two women's dormitories at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Security-Tight Quebec Waiting For Elizabeth

Quebec City, Que. (UPI)—The royal yacht Britannia carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip encountered heavy seas Thursday as it approached Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula accompanied by four Canadian warships.

The 4,715-ton floating palace was proceeding toward security-conscious Quebec at eleven knots in "rather rough seas and high winds."

The royal couple was scheduled to arrive in Quebec City Saturday morning on the last leg of their eight-day tour of Canada.

French separatists, who want Quebec to secede from Canada and form a separate French-speaking state, have threatened demonstrations when the queen arrives for a 33-hour visit.

The security was so tight that reporters in the press galleries of legislative buildings to be visited by the queen were ordered to leave their desk drawers and cabinets open to allow authorities to search them at will.

A spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), one of seven provincial and federal law enforcement agencies on duty here, said there had been no preventive arrests of French separatists or their sympathizers by mid-afternoon Thursday.

The royal couple had a scare late Wednesday night as they prepared to depart from Charlottetown, P.E.I. The gangplank of their yacht was pulled away from the dock by the wind just as the queen was about to board the vessel.

Klan Seeks To Improve Image At State Fair

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI)—In an effort to become better known to the public, the Ku Klux Klan has set up an exhibition at the Alabama State Fair.

It is the first time the secret organization has offered a public exhibition. The purpose is to improve the Klan's image and recruit members to oppose integration and communism.

Lined with small Confederate flags, and with a large American flag and Confederate banner waving on either side, the faded white canvas booth draws a large number of persons daily.

The front of the booth, strategically located near the main midway where about 350,000 persons will pass before the fair ends Saturday—proudly proclaims:

"United Klans of America—Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

At the back of the booth is a huge figure of a hooded rider on a shiny white horse, all of which is lighted by fluorescent beams at night, and a five-foot cross covered with aluminum foil and dotted with red light bulbs.

GOOD NEWS!

Original Spring Rain Is Back!

MRS. VIOLET SCHOLES
Alsip Illinois

"What ever happened to your Spring Rain . . . the one in the box with the blossoms on it? I used it since it first came on the market, and have recommended it to many, many people who, like I, live in suburban areas and suffer from hard water. When I couldn't find it I tried other water softeners, but your old Spring Rain was ever so much better. Please, where can I get it?"

MRS. EVERETTE GRAY
Vandalia, Ohio

"I have stopped everything to write and ask why, oh why, you had to fool around and change Spring Rain Water Softener. I used Spring Rain for a year and my wash was not only white and bright, but had a clean and delightful smell as well as a clean feel. My automatic also stayed in spotless condition. My neighbor is just real happy that she has not run out of that first Spring Rain, but mine is all gone and I'm about to blow my top. Please bring back the real Spring Rain."

Why do women write Love Letters about this water softener?

You'll never know why thousands of women are happy today until you try original Spring Rain! So many of them wrote "love letters" about this wonderful water softener that Tidy House had to bring it back! It's at your grocer's now. Original free-rinsing formula that makes everything you wash come out cleaner, fresher, brighter. And that's guaranteed by Tidy House!

MRS. FRED A. SCHOLTZ
Palatine, Illinois

"Believe me, I really have hard water where I live, and when Spring Rain Water Softener first came out it was so good I bought no less than six boxes at a time! Then for some crazy reason it was changed. When are you going to bring back that first Spring Rain?"

MRS. W. O. SEESZ
Richfield, Minnesota

"Would you tell me where I could get hold of some Spring Rain? I tried different water softeners to get one that would work in our very hard water, and finally found Spring Rain and it was wonderful. My clothes came out so white, soft and very fresh. And your first Spring Rain was the only water softener that left my hair soft—not gummy—after shampooing it."

RFK, Keating Set 2 Debates

New York (AP)—Democrat Robert F. Kennedy and his Republican opponent, U. S. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, said Thursday night they are ready to meet in two debates on foreign and domestic affairs.

Kennedy said the offer for the debates came from Keating.

"He has said he would like to debate me on his record in Congress and on the real issues in the campaign," Kennedy said in a speech to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"I accepted his invitation . . . So that there can be no difficulty in arranging a format, I would be happy to share the costs with him of such a televised debate and to accept the format that was used in the Kennedy-Nixon debates in 1960—one debate on domestic matters and the other on foreign affairs."

In White Plains, Keating told a news conference, "I am happy he has now accepted my challenge . . ."

Keating said he had no objection to discussing foreign and domestic affairs in the debates.

HEAD INJURY PROTECTION

Looking like he is all set to go out for the team, 2-year-old Lief King sits in his crib at a Seattle, Wash., hospital where he is under treatment for a double skull fracture. Lief toppled backwards from the upper bunk of a bed at his Seattle home last week, sustaining the injuries. The football headgear serves to protect him from further injury while recovering.

Lady Bird's Reception Mixed

Aboard the Lady Bird Special (UPI)—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson barnstormed through south Georgia aboard her "Lady Bird Special" Thursday, and Gov. Carl Sanders said she was "cutting the heart out of the Goldwater campaign in the South."

The First Lady, on her third day of a four-day swing through the South, has encountered some heckling since her campaign train hit South Carolina, but she took the harassment in stride.

"I think it (the heckling) puts more vigor in our workers," she said.

At Savannah, Mrs. Johnson studiously ignored signs proclaiming, "Welcome to Goldwater country."

She received a gallant, if not totally open-arms welcome as her train continued southward through the south Georgia towns of Jesup, Waycross, Valdosa and Thomasville.

At Jesup, in the backwaters of the Okeefenokee Swamp, a sign hung from the local Goldwater headquarters proclaiming:

"The Goldwater club welcomes the First Lady."

A similar sign was displayed at Waycross.

Sanders told reporters the Lady Bird Special started out "as a train and it looks like its winding up as a bandwagon.

"I think this trip is going to produce some wonderful results and leave a fine taste about the First Lady and President Johnson," Sanders said.

He predicted with increasing enthusiasm at each stop that Johnson would win Georgia and even south Georgia, which had been considered "infested with Goldwaterites."

GOP Advises Southern Goldwater Backers To Quit Booing Mrs. LBJ

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—The Republican National Committee has directed party leaders in the Southern states Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson is visiting on her whistle-stop tour to make every effort to prevent the booing of the First Lady.

Mrs. Johnson has been booed at some appearances.

Denison Kitchel, campaign director for Goldwater, said Thursday the national committee sent out an advisory several days ago to party leaders asking them to pass along word that Mrs. Johnson was to be treated politely.

He said a new directive had been sent as a result of heckling. "We want no part of it," Kitchel said.

MILLER SAYS PARTY OVERTAKING DEMOS

Nashville, Tenn. (AP)—President Johnson's drive for reelection has passed its peak and is sliding downhill, while the Republican campaign is moving up fast, Rep. William E. Miller claimed Thursday.

Moving to counter any trend toward defeatism of GOP ranks, Miller urged Republicans across the nation to pay no attention to the Democratic President's claim that he is headed for a record victory.

In a statement issued in Nashville as he wound up a three-day campaign swing through the South, the GOP vice presidential nominee declared:

"Senator Goldwater and I have news for Lyndon Johnson—and for any Democrats or Republicans who might be influenced by his claim to think that we do not have a chance. . .

"This (election) is not a plebescite we hold strictly for Lyndon's benefit. There are millions of Americans who won't carry a rubber stamp into the polls."

Miller followed through by telling a cheering crowd of several thousand gathered for a rally outside the Nashville war memorial auditorium: "I don't care what the pollsters or the columnists say—the American people are going to decide this election."

REP. MILLER HAS A COLD

St. Joseph, Mo. (AP)—Rep. William E. Miller was fighting a cold as he arrived in St. Joseph Thursday night for a major campaign speech.

The Republican vice presidential candidate went directly from the airport, to a hotel and to bed.

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, P.T.A. notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

Fun News In Suburbia

MEADOW LANE

If you find yourself rummaging through your closets today looking for something to wear to the football game, may we offer a few suggestions.

Regardless of what the weatherman predicts—it is going to be windy—very windy. For all practical purposes what one really needs is a stocking cap—but imagine what everyone would think if you arrived in your best fall suit with a stocking cap perched on top of your head?

Wind or no wind—it looks like a very eventful weekend, filled with guests, parties, and travels.

There are out-of-state guests to mention this morning—at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean C. McMurtry Jr.—and they are Mr. McMurtry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McMurty and Mrs. McMurtry's father, R. W. Cadenhead.

These visitors traveled to Lincoln from Shamrock, Tex., and arrived in the Capital City Tuesday afternoon. The three Texas residents will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. McMurtry Jr., for about a week.

Entertaining of guests has spread throughout the Meadow Lane area this week for there are more visitors to report.

Arriving at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker and their son, Paul on Wednesday were Mrs. Baker's grandmother and mother, Mrs. E. J. Smith and Mrs. Paul Banks of Burwell.

The two travelers will be in Lincoln for two days.

It was surprise time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lansing Gabel on Wednesday-surprise guest-time that is.

Arriving at the Gabel home were Mrs. Gabel's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray of Denver, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray will be in the Lincoln area for several days before returning to their home.

Traveling up the block to Orchard Street we find that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Fleck is an exceptionally busy one this week.

They, along with Mr. Fleck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Fleck, are entertaining a very special out-of-town guest—Mr. Jerome Fleck's brother, Vernon Fleck of Leominster, Mass.

Mr. Fleck arrived in Lincoln on Monday and will be visiting until this weekend.

Tonight, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Fleck will be host and hostess at their home where they will enteratin family members in honor of their visiting son.

Gathering at the Fleck home will be Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Fleck, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Fleck, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Fleck of Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Porter of Nelson, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Faimon.

Around The Town

All signs seem to indicate that the town will most likely be a gay one this weekend—there are a variety of before and after-the-game gatherings, dancing club parties, and courtesies for popular brides-elect of the autumn season, to keep the residents busy.

The courtesies already have begun for Miss Mary Alice Crabill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Crabill, who has chosen a December date—Dec. 28, to be exact—for her marriage to Gary W. Amerman of Billings, Mont.

On Thursday evening, the bride-elect was the guest of honor at a party for which Mrs. Donald Shurtleff and her daughter, Mrs. Darrel Stanard, were hostesses at the Shurtleff home. During the eveing, Miss Crabill was presented a kitchen-gadget shower.

A pantry shower was presented to the bride-to-be recently when Mrs. Arthur Weaver and Mrs. Lee Stover entertained a group of guests at luncheon.

Miss Crabill shared honors with her fiance at a recent family dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davies were host and hostess, and also entertaining family members at dinner in courtesy to Miss Crabill and Mr. Amerman were Mr. and Mrs. N. Bruce Hazen.

* * *

Miss Kay Matison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Matison, will be the guest of honor on Sunday when Miss Nancy Chenoweth will be hostess during the afternoon hours at her home. The October bride-elect, whose marriage to Stephen W. Van Sickle will be solemnized on Thursday evening, Oct. 15, will be presented a personal shower.

In courtesy to Miss Matison and their son, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Van Sickle will entertain at dinner Wednesday evening at the University Club, following the wedding rehearsal at First-Plymouth Church. The 25 guests will include members of the family and bridal party.

* * *

Understand that the Cotillion Cub elected new members on Wednesday evennig at the fall dinner and meeting of the group at the University Club.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Olsson will head the club for the coming year, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meginnis, and new club members are Mr. and Mrs. Eames Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Mapes, Mr. and Mrs. West Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oldfather and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Roper.

* * *

One of the city's newest residents is Sidney Matthew Sweet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Sweet, who was born on Tuesday, Oct. 6, at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The very young Mr. Sweet, a Sigma Chi legacy, incidentally, has an older brother, Michael, and a sister, Sara, and his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sweet of Mitchell, S. D., and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Rooney of Greeley.

Dear Abby

Same Old Problem

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am now a high school freshman and I have all new teachers, but I still have the same old problem. The very first day of school, the English teacher took one look at my name and said, "Oh, your'e MARVIN's brother . . . I am going to expect a lot from you!" All through grammar school the teachers called me either MARVIN or SIDNEY because they had my two older brothers, and they were both outstanding students. I am not a bad student, but it is hard to live up to an older brother's reputation. I am so sick of being known as MARVIN's brother, or SIDNEY's brother, that I wish I could go a thousand miles away and have my own identity. Why are teachers so stupid?

"MYSELF"

DEAR "MYSELF": Teachers are not so "stupid" as they are thoughtless. Almost everyone who has had older sisters or brothers has had to walk the same path. Perhaps you should be grateful that you had two good acts to follow, instead of two bad actors.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would put something in your column about young couples who make a public display of their affection for one another. This lovely young couple has been married four years now, and they still behave as though they were entirely alone. They are intelligent, well-educated, refined and sensitive people, Abby. It is good to know that they love each other, but their gestures are so brazen in the presence of others that it is embarrassing.

ONE WHO LOVES THEM

DEAR ONE: Married couples have sufficient opportunities to express their affection for each other privately. Intelligent, refined and sensitive people respect the feelings of others. This couple hardly deserves the adjectives you used to describe them.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Alumnae Club To Entertain

Alumnae of Sigma Delta Tau sorority met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Louis Orloff to make plans for a dinner honoring the pledges of the collegiate chapter at the University of Nebraska.

The dinner will be held Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hill.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Wylene Ann Williams of Lincoln, daughter of Mrs. Maxyne Williams of Stromsburg, to Mark Josepha Novicki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Novicki of Columbus.

The wedding will take place next summer.

Why Grow Old?

Questions And Answers

Josephine Lowman

Q. I am 18 years old and have a very small bust. I am very self-conscious about this. Can you tell me at what age a girl usually stops developing curves? Is it true that after (not during pregnancy) the bust becomes larger?

A. Girls vary greatly as to when they complete maturity. Most of them have developed their curves by the age of 18. However this is not always the case.

The breasts enlarge during pregnancy. Many women say that their bust was larger after pregnancy. I am inclined to think that this is usually due to a gain in weight, although it is no doubt possible that the glandular setup may have changed.

Has No Curves

Q. I am 14 years old and have more than a problem. I am 4 feet, 10½ inches tall and weigh 82 pounds. I have no bust, nor hips, and have skinny legs. I guess this is why I am not popular. Please help me!

Curves to Come?

A. Don't worry about the curves! As I have just said not all girls develop at the same age. However, you are underweight and should try to gain about 10 pounds. Be sure that you get plenty of sleep and eat three well-balanced meals a day, with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables in your diet, as well as milk, meat, fish, fowl, eggs and whole grain products. Vitamin B supplements sometimes aid in a gain of weight.

Q. I am 21 years of age and since I was graduated I have been working at a job in which I stand all day. I have developed varicose veins and red capillaries on my legs. I am so depressed by them.

I went to my family doctor for a routine checkup and mentioned them to him but he just ignored them. My mom says, "wait till you have a few babies and then you might have a lot of varicose veins to complain about." I am ashamed and I didn't wear shorts all summer.

Can Anything be Done?

A large nose can be bobbed, bad teeth can be straightened, glasses can be replaced by contact lenses, moles or unwanted hair can be removed, hair color can be changed and you can rearrange your figure with diet and exercise! BUT what can you do about varicose veins?

I was so happy when I heard about injections, but then I heard that they leave black and blue spots. Is this true? Can I be helped if I go to a specialist? If so, what kind?

A. If you have real varicose veins you should see a specialist, one who deals with vascular troubles. If the varicosity is not too severe, injections are used with great success. Of course these veins can be removed. Your specialist will advise you. The women I have known who have had the injections had no resulting black and blue marks.

It is not a good idea to wait. In fact early treatment is important.

Bridge

What To Rebid?

B. Jay Becker

QUIZ

You are the dealer, neither side vulnerable, and have opened One Heart. Partner responds One Notrump. What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠A9 ♥AQJ9852 ♦7 ♣KJ8
2. ♠A54 ♥AJ653 ♦KJ7 ♣K4
3. ♠K3 ♥KQ8753 ♦AK82 ♣9
4. ♠AK7 ♥KQJ62 ♦AQ5 ♣J8

1. Four hearts. I would be a mistake to bid only three hearts at this point, even though we have only 15 high-card points. A jump to three hearts would not be forcing and partner might readily pass with a hand that would produce a good chance for game.

This hand figures to make eight tricks by itself and there is a reasonable prospect that partner can produce two additional tricks even with minimum values for his notrump response. We could go down, of course, if partner has the wrong type of hand, but this is a risk worth taking.

2. Pass. Game is unlikely and the best thing to do is pass. The notrump response is generally based on 6 to 9 points, which means that the chance of having the 26 points ordinarily required for three notrump is poor.

The only other possible bid to consider is two notrump, but if partner were to pass this invitational rebid, it would mean that his hand was so weak that even an eight-trick contract would be in danger. A raise to two notrump in this sequence announces a holding of 17 to 19 points.

3. Two diamonds. For practical purposes, the only real chance of making a game lies in hearts, but, strangely enough, the best way of getting to a playable heart game is by bidding two diamonds.

We lack the values for a three heart bid, since game in that suit depends on at least moderate heart support. A rebid of two hearts is likely to be passed, since the notrump responder seldom bids again over a minimum rebid of a suit.

The two diamond bid has the great advantage that partner may make a preference bid of two hearts, which is just what we would like to hear. If this happens, we can then bid three hearts, for the first time revealing a better than minimum opening bid. Partner can then decide whether to carry on.

4. Three notrump. With 20 high-card points facing at least 6, the obvious bid is the best one. Of course we would like to have better clubs for a notrump contract, but there is a very good chance that partner has at least some club strength. You can't bid every game with 100% assurance that it will be made.

PEO Chapter

The members of Chapter DL, PEO, will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Larson, RFD 3. The program will follow a 12:45 o'clock luncheon.

The Brides Book

Plans for an October wedding are being revealed this morning by Miss Sandra Willis, daughter of Mrs. Gerald Willis, and the late Mr. Willis, who has chosen Saturday, Oct. 17, as the date for her marriage to Jack Chapin.

The ceremony will be solemnized at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at Christ Lutheran Church, and for her matron of honor, Miss Willis has named Mrs. Bill Platz of Lawrence, Kan.

Miss Pat Becker will be the maid of honor, and bridesmaid will be Miss Judy Schmidt. Mrs. Daniel Hansen of San Diego, Calif., will be bridesmatron. Miss Linda Lowery of Denver, Colo., will be the flower girl, and ringbearer will be Jeffrey Chapin.

James Bartolome will serve Mr. Chapin as best man, and the corps of ushers will include Duane Termatt, Panama; Bill Platz, Lawrence, Kan.; Kenneth Schmidt, Gaylord, Minn.; Al Leonard and Martin Johns. Leslie Zadina and John Becker will light the candles.

In prenuptial courtesy to their son and his fiancee, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chapin will be host and hostess at dinner on Friday evening at Tillman's Plaza. The 30 guests will include members of the family and bridal party.

Entertaining for Miss Willis last Friday evening were Mrs. Si Zadina and Mrs. John Becker, who were cohostesses to 40 guests at the home of Mrs. Zadina. During the party, a miscellaneous shower was presented to the honoree.

Miss Willis also was honored recently at a shower given by Mrs. Emanual Schmidt and Mrs. Peter Maul. Thirty-five guests were invited to the home of Mrs. Maul for an informal evening.

An autumn bride-elect whose wedding will be an event of Saturday, Oct. 10, is Miss JoAnne Hebner of Lincoln, who will become the bride of A.2c Dennis Seawall of Salina, Kan., at a 12:30 o'clock service to be solemnized at St. Andrew's Church in Tecumseh.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hebner of Tecumseh, the bride-elect has named Mrs. David Little of Crab Orchard, as her matron of honor. Her bridesmaids will be her fiance's sisters, Miss Elizabeth Seawall and Miss Henrietta Seawall, both of Lincoln.

Larry Seawall of Salina will serve his brother as best man, and seating the guests will be Steve Seawall, also a brother of the bridegroom-elect, Gary Pella and David Pella, all of Tecumseh; and Ted Evans, Manhattan, Kan.

We Hear That

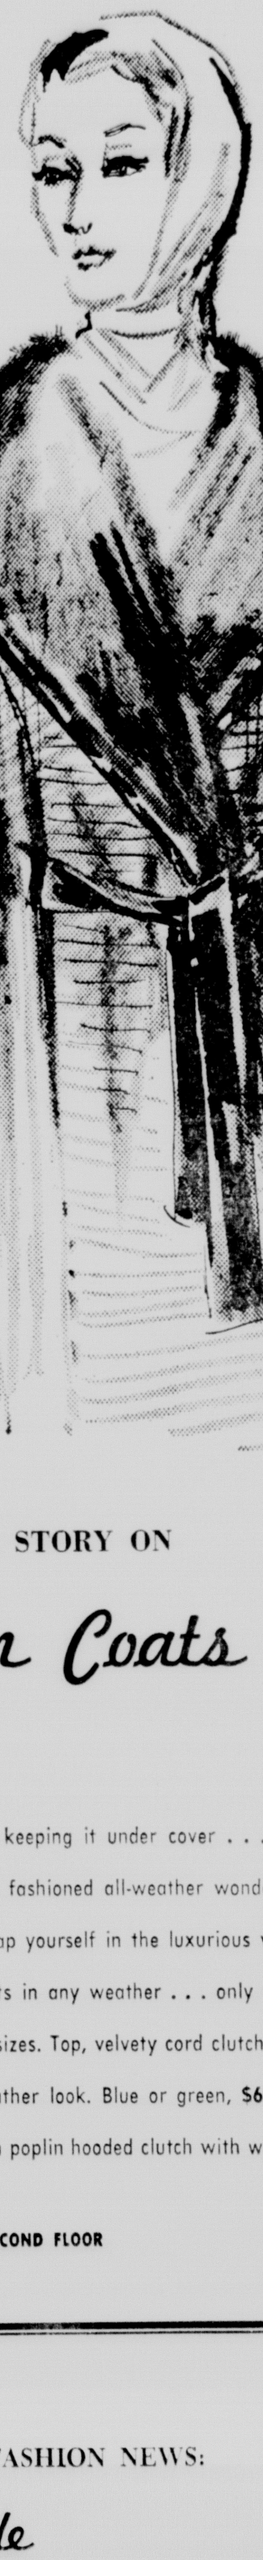

Arriving Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Johnson were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Johnson, Jr., of Rochester, Mich. Mr. Johnson is a former student at the University of Nebraska. The Michigan guests will leave for home today.

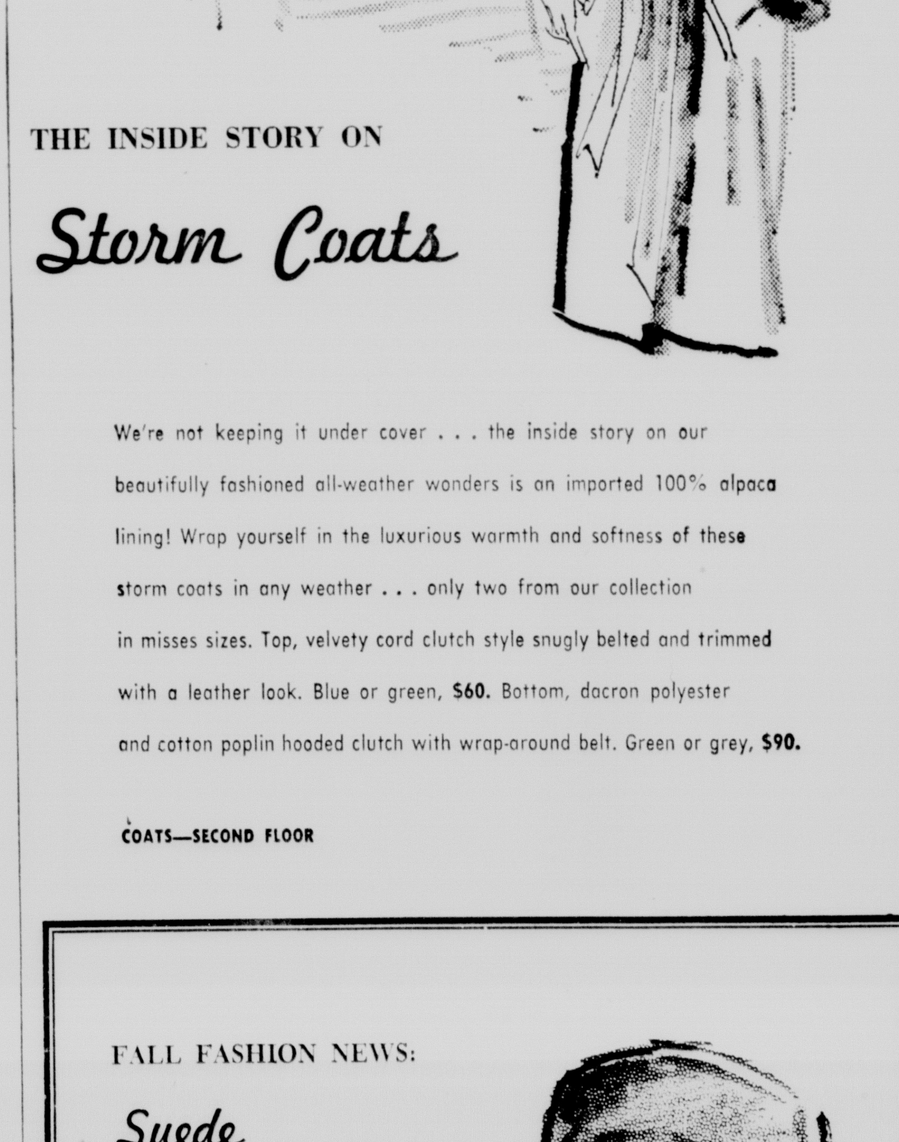

☆

Depends On Wording

Nebraska's Band Day foe Saturday sounds like two different ball clubs depending on how you describe them.

If you say South Carolina has lost only one game this season, it makes them sound like a good football team. But when you turn it around and say South Carolina hasn't won yet, they don't sound so fearsome.

The Gamecocks probably are somewhere between the two statements with their record of one loss and two ties in three games this season.

Forgetting about fourth game jinxes, black cats, and other superstitions, let's call it four in a row for the Huskers: NEBRASKA 20, South Carolina 7.

Last week's percentage was .633 on 37 right, 21 wrong and two ties for a season mark of 108 right, 52 wrong and five ties for a .670 record.

Other games:

The Big Eight

IOWA STATE 14, Kansas 7 . . . The Cyclones have to beat some one and it's more than likely to be Kansas where Jack Mitchell can hardly afford any more losses.

TEXAS 21, Oklahoma 14 . . . The Sooners aren't as bad as they looked two weeks ago and they've had a couple of weeks to prepare for the nation's No. 1 team.

OKLAHOMA STATE 24, Colorado 7 . . . The Cowboys get to sit on top the Big Eight for at least another week. Before the season opened this game figured to be a key game only for the cellar spot, but things have changed.

MISSOURI 21, Kansas State 0 . . . Things have got to get better offensively at Missouri and it should start this weekend.

Stottlemyre's Sinker, Pepitone's Thigh Top Cards, 8-3

St. Louis (AP)—Joe Pepitone's left thigh and Mel Stottlemyre's sinker-ball did the St. Louis Cardinals in Thursday in an 8-3 New York Yankee victory that squared the World Series after two games.

Although the Yanks battered Bob Gibson and his successors for 12 hits, the Cards were screaming bloody murder about a controversial call by plate umpire Bill McKinley in the sixth inning.

Pepitone was at bat with Mickey Mantle on first, one out and the score tied at 1-1. The Yankee first baseman checked a half swing at an inside pitch and McKinley ruled he had been hit by the pitch. Tom Tresh's single than scored Mantle with the go-ahead run.

"The pitch hit him," said McKinley." I call them as I see them. That is the way it was. It hit him right here." McKinley pointed to his thigh.

"It may have hit him but we heard it hit the bat first," said Cardinal Manager Johnny Keane. "That was the turning point of the game. Tim McCarver saw it. Gibson saw it. The whole Cardinal bench saw it. The ball glanced off the bat first."

"The ball sliced off my thigh," said Pepitone, "and I turned to the umpire and said, 'The ball hit me.' He said, 'No swing —take your base.'"

Almost overlooked in the controversy was the fact that the Yankees went on from there for two more runs in the seventh and a big four in the ninth off Barney Schultz, Gordon Richardson and Roger Craig, while Stottlemyre, a 22-year-old rookie, subdued the Redbirds with seven hits. Among the 12 Yank hits were a homer by Phil Linz and four doules.

A rich chorus of boos rolled through the chill air as another standing room crowd of 30,805 huddled in the 58-degree weather at Busch Stadium and blasted McKinley.

In the meantime, young Stottlemyre, a name Yogi Berra still has trouble spelling, kept throwing that sinker-ball with his big overhand delivery.

The teams left for New York immediately after the game. Friday is an off day for travel.

When they resume Saturday at Yankee Stadium it will be Jim Bouton, 18-13, a 25-year-old right-hander, pitching for the Yanks and 35-year-old Curt Simmons 18-9, a lefty, working for the Cards.

They will play three in New York and then will come back to St. Louis for the rest of the best-of-seven series if more are needed.

Stottlemyre, recalled from the Richmond farm club of the International League Aug. 11, had the Cardinals hitting the ball into the dirt all through the cloudy afternoon.

The slim 22-year-old righthander from Mabton, Wash., banks on a sinker ball and he had tight control of the situation until he appeared to tire in the eighth and ninth.

Berra, the Yankee manager, came out to the mound twice, once to see if his pitcher had been hurt by a line smash off the bat of Lou Brock in the sixth. Yogi made one more trip in the ninth after a leadoff triple by Groat and a single by McCarver produced a run with nobody out.

Mike Shannon, the hero of Wednesday's Cardinal uprising, slashed into a fast double play and Stottlemyre struck out pinch batter Charley James to end it.

It was quite a performance for a young man who was pitching in the minors most of the season. In fact, Stottlemyre's 13-3 record in Richmond earned him the most valuable pitcher award in that league despite his month's absence. More than any other pitcher, the youngster was responsible for the late Yankee pennant surge with his 9-3 victory record.

The victory halted a five-game series losing slump of the Yanks who hadn't won since they took the seventh game from The San Francisco Giants in 1962. They went out in four straight to Los Angeles last year and dropped the opener to the Cards 9-5.

Gibson, humming his fast ball with wild aandon, struck out eight men in the first four innings. When he left the game after eight innings he had a total of nine strikeouts.

Berra said Stottlemyre had been hit on the wrist by Brock's drive in the sixth. The Yankee manager said he had considered taking out the rookie when pinch hitter Carl Warwick singled and pinch hitter Bob Skinner doubled to open the eighth.

Stottlemyre pitched out of trouble then and again in the ninth.

Down in the Yankee clubhouse after the game, Berra paid tribute to Stottlemyre and also gave credit to Gibson.

"He had me worried when he was striking everybody out," Yogi said.

Pepitone greeted reporters by yelling, "this is my first World Series victory."

"It was mine, too," added Berra, the rookie manager.

The Cardinals scored first, pushing home a run in the third on singles by Shannon and Dal Maxvill and an infield out by Curt Flood.

New York tied it in the fourth on doubles by Elston Howard and Pepitone and a sacrifice fly by Clete Boyer.

Then came the hit batsman incident in the sixth that could have been the key to the ball game.

"Gibson and McCarver told me the ball definitely hit the bat for a foul ball," said Keane. "I even heard it in the dugout. Pepitone hesitated, which made me all the more sure. Usually when anybody is hit by a pitch, he immediately drops his bat and runs to first. Pepitone hesitated."

The Yanks got to Gibson in the seventh for two big runs when Phil Linz singled for his second hit of the day, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Bobby Richardson's single. Another single by Maris and Mantle's infield grounder scored Richardson.

The ninth was a rout as far as the Cards were concerned. Schultz, the 38-year-old knuckler, gave up a homer by Linz and a single by Maris before he left. Richardson was roughed up by Mantle's double, Pepitone's single and Tom Tresh's sacrifice fly.

Linz, the harmonica player who drew a $200 fine and a bawling out from Berra for tootling in a bus after the Yanks had lost four straight in Chicago, came through with three hits. He is playing shortstop in place of the injured Tony Kubek, out for the Series with a jammed right wrist.

The tail-end of the Cardinal order was the toughest for Stottlemyre. None of the first four batters came through with a hit.

In the umpires' dressing room, McKinley gave this version of the pitch that hit Pepitone:

"Pepitone took a stride but he didn't swing all the way. It was a curve ball and it came in and hit him right here (pointing toward his thigh). I saw it."

Pepitone said the ball hit him on the left thigh.

—THIGH SIGNIFICANT—

Stray Pitch Hits Pepitone; Walk Hastens Yankee Win

By Associated Press

St. Louis (AP)—"That's the thigh," said Joe Pepitone. "See it. It didn't hurt, but it stung. That's the thigh."

Peiptone bared his left thigh in the New York Yankees dressing room after an 8-3 romp over the St. Louis Cardinals in the second game which squared the World Series at one victory each.

Pepitone's thigh became significant in the sixth inning with one out after Mickey Mantle had led off with a walk. He was hit by a pitch and Mantle advanced to second before scoring the run on a single by Tom Tresh that put the Yanks ahead 2-1.

There was a slight redness on the thigh, but no swelling as the first basemen explained what had happened at home plate.

"The ball sliced off my thigh, and I turned around to the umpire and said, 'The ball hit me.' He said 'No swing—take your base."

The umpire was Bill McKinley of the American League.

"He would have sent me down to first whether I told him or not," Pepitone continued. "He would have called it. He just said, 'No swing,' because I had pulled away and maybe he thought the Cardinals were arguing about that."

Pepitone said he heard Dick Groat, Cardinal shortstop, complaining that "I didn't make any sign that I was hit."

"What did he want me to do?" asked Pepitone, "roll over in pain?"

Someone asked why he didn't even rub the spot as he went down to first.

"Heck, I couldn't rub it," Pepitone quipped "Crosetti would get on me."

Crosetti is Yankee coach Frank Crosetti.

Yogi Berra, the Yankee manager, said he really couldn't see what happened as Pepitone, a left-handed hitter, had his back to the dugout.

"But we heard a 'tick,' " Berra said, "and when he came back to the dugout he said, 'It hit me.' "

Sentiment Finds Place In Football

. . . TACKLER VOICES APOLOGIES IN LETTER TO DUDA

Anyone who thinks sentiment and emotionalism are lacking in today's college football need go no further than Room 207 at the University of Nebraska Student Health Center to change his mind.

That is the room assigned to injured Nebraska quarterback Fred Duda, who will bouch for the fact that people are thoughtful.

"Everybody certainly has been good to me," said Duda, sitting on the edge of his hospital bed and pointing to the hundreds of get-well cards that have poured in since he broke his leg at Iowa State. "I have gotten so many letters and cards from friends and fans, I doubt if I can answer them all."

One letter definitely will get answered, and it's one that points out quite clearly the valuable side of college football. The hand-written letter was from Joe Beauchamp, the Iowa State sophomore who tackled Duda on the play which resulted in his injury. It read in part:

"We didn't meet until last Saturday and in a way I wish we hadn't.

"I'm the one who tackled you when you were injured. When I heard the extent of your injury and that you may never play again, I decided to write and tell you how sorry I am.

"I sincerely hope you can come back from this. I realize how much football means to you, as it means a great deal to me.

"I hope to see you on the gridiron once again and hope it can be this fall. Best of luck."

In giving permission for a portion of Beauchamp's letter to be printed, Duda said:

"I have heard from other Iowa State players, too. Beauchamp doesn't need to feel bad because it was just one of those things that happen. It was a clean tackle."

Nebraska team physician, Dr. Frank Stone, makes no promises, but he does not rule out football for Duda. The orthopedic surgeon, reports Duda will be released in a week or 10 days, probably will wear the present cast for at least six weeks, then change to a "walker" cast for another six weeks or more.

It is planned to insert a pin attached to the cast, in order to keep the cast more steady, next Monday. If Duda continues to make progress, he'll watch the Negame from a wheel chair on the sidelines.

Says Fred: "Churchick (Husker sophomore Bob Churchich who subbed for Duda at Iowa State and did a fine job) is a good quarterback. Bob will handle the team in fine style against South Carolina."

And he adds a post script: "If I don't get to answer all the mail, please let everyone know how much I appreciate all they've done for me since I was injured. Thank them all for me."

So to all the Husker fans, Iowa State players and fans —and everyone who took time to wish him well:

Fred Duda says: "Thanks!"

Dodge City, Kan. (AP) — McCook, Nebr., Junior College was rated sixth in the first football coaches poll of the season in the National Junior College Athletic Association. McCook is 3-1 for the season.

The Cameron Aggies of Lawton, Okla., undefeated in four games, were rated No. 1. Coffeyville, Kan., 4-0, was second, then came Northeastern Oklahoma of Miami, 2-0; Tyler, Tex., 3-1; and Fort Scott, Kan., 4-0.

Sooners Make Final Preparation

Norman, Okla. (AP) — A 45-minute pass pattern and punt return workout ended Oklahoma's home preparations Thursday for Saturday's football game with Texas at Dallas.

John Hammond was still the signal caller for the first unit and Mike Ringer, nursing a sore arm, quarterbacked the second team.

The Sooners leave by plane Friday morning and will spend the night in Fort Worth. A light workout is scheduled at a Fort Worth high school Friday afternoon.

Cards Say Pitch Hit Bat First

. . . McKINLEY EXPRESSES OPPOSING VIEW

St. Louis (AP) — "The pitch hit him," said World Series plate umpire, Bill McKinley.

"It may have hit him," countered the St. Louis Cardinal manager, Johnny Keane, "but we heard it hit his bat first."

In different rooms beneath Busch Stadium Thursday the umpire and the manager gave opposing views of the disputed curve ball by Bob Gibson in the sixth inning which was ruled hit the batter.

At the time, the score was tied 1-1 and later in the inning the New York Yankees went ahead 2-1.

The Yanks wound up on top of the second game, 8-3, squaring the Series.

"That play was the turning point of this ball game," said the scrappy Cardinal skipper. "Tim McCarver, our catcher, saw it, Gibson saw it, and the whole Cardinal bench saw it.

"Gibson's ball glanced off Joe Pepitone's bat first. It may have hit him, but we heard it hit his bat first."

McKinley, who was embroiled in heated discussion with Keane, McCarver, Gibson and other Cardinal players at the time, quietly explained his views in the umpires' dressing room later.

"Pepitone took a sort of half swing at the ball, but he didn't hit it," McKinley said. "He just sort of half-stepped toward it and the curve ball just came in and hit him right there on the thigh."

McKinley pointed to his own right thigh.

Pepitone, besieged by newsmen in the Yankee dressing room, said it hit his left thigh.

"That's the thigh," he said, pointing to his left leg. "See it. It didn't hurt, but it stung."

Keane and the Cardinal players took a different view.

"Look," said shortstop Dick Groat, "When a guy gets hit by a ball he doesn't just stand there like Pepitone did and wait for the umpire to tell him to go to first. He drops his bat and takes off. I think Pepitone would have done just that if he'd been hit."

"I thought I saw that pitch glance off his bat," said Gibson, the hard-firing right-hander who was bested by rookie Mel Stottlemyre. "I know I heard a noise that sounded like a ball hitting a bat."

"I was sure he hit it," said McCarver, the catcher. "It was a curve ball and I was following it all the way because Pepitone was leaning away. It looked to me like it glanced off his bat and nit his uniform."

Aside from the disputed play, the Cardinals' only complaint was that Stottlemyre's pitching was too good. The lanky, youthful right-hander limited the Cards to seven hits.

"He is an excellent pitcher," said Keane. "I don't know of anyone in our league who has a style like him. He's a better pitcher than our scouting reports had led us to believe. He's real quick. We didn't have any information that he was that quick."

"We have a pretty good-hitting ball club," said Gibson, "but we couldn't get much off that kid. He's nothing but good."

Gibson said his own fast ball was good, but not as fast as usual. The ace right-hander struck out nine Yankees before leaving in the late innings, including four straight early in the game.

"But I'd had to have been awful good to beat Stottlemyre today," he grinned.

Wesleyan Football Statistics Soar

By TOM HENDERSON
Star Sports Writer

This year's edition of coach Ray Westover's Nebraska Wesleyan football squad seems headed toward a higher statistical output than that turned in by the 1963 Plainsman gridders.

As the Plainsmen wait for their first taste of Great Plains College Association competition tonight when they host the Colorado College Tigers at O.N. Magee Stadium, Westover's crew has a big statistical advantage in nearly all departments.

Probably the most impressive gain this year is in scoring. Last season the Plainsmen had scored only 46 points in their first three games.

This season after three games, Wesleyan ballcarriers have invaded enemy goalines enough times to rack up 105 points.

Leading the Wesleyan scoring parade so far this year is 187-pound junior end Dwight Tietjen with four TDs to his credit. Three of Tietjen's scoring plays have come on passes, while the fourth was on a fumble return.

In the total offense department, Wesleyan boasts 1060 yards, 342 more than last season's total of 718. The Plainsmen own an impressive 353.3-yard average in that division.

NWU passers have produced 402 yards on 21 completions this year for an average of 134 yards per game. In 1963 only 183 yards had been accumulated through the air lanes at this time.

Five aerials this season have resulted in touchdowns, while only three had produced scores last season.

The '64 statistical edge doesn't stop there.

—In 1963 the Plainsman's net gain total read 535 yards. This season Westover's club has gained 123 yards more for 658 yards.

—Top pass receivers last year at this time were Tietjen and Dennis Quick, both with two catches. This year Tietjen already has 12 receptions, while Bill Rohrig, Gar Muehlhausen, and Skip Peterson share second place with two each.

Tietjen has already surpassed his '63 pass-catching feats. The De Witt native caught 12 for 187 yards last year, while his 12 catches this season have netted 217 yards.

In punting, Quick's 42.1 average on nine boots have earned him fourth place in the NCAA college punting statistics. At this same time in '63, Quick had a lowly 28.8 average.

Quarterback Mike Slatinsky's total offensive production for the first two games ranked him 11th in the NCAA college stats with 374 yards. Slatinsky added 193 yards last week when the Plainsmen bombed St. Mary of the Plains, 45-0, in Dodge City.

On the minus side of the ledger, the '64 Wesleyan defense has given up 26 points to opposing clubs, while only 20 points had been scored against Wesleyan last season at this time.

The Plainsmen are eyeing their eighth straight victory tonight, three already this year, against the Tigers from Colorado Springs.

After a slow start last Saturday, Wesleyan opened up a 20-point second quarter attack and then went on to thump St. Mary, 45-0.

The Tigers of Colorado College have yet to win in three outings this season, losing 12-21 to GPCA leader Hastings in their only conference outing prior to tonight's clash.

Colorado College is Wesleyan's only '64 opponent which boasts a winning series record over the Plainsmen. The Tigers have won two and lost only last year's encounter, 13-7, in the series which started in 1950. The teams battled to a 6-6 tie in 1962.

The Tigers will be without fullback Steve Sabol this year. Sabol suffered an attack of hepatitis last summer, and hasn't regained his strength.

Quarterback Dave Welch will also be missing from the Tiger lineup tonight due to an injury. Welch will be replaced by Warren Weeser.

Sabol pounded NWU defenses for 98 yards on 17 carries last season and Westover won't stain the crying towel over his absence.

Westover expects his club to be in top shape for the contest. Transfer quarterback Dave Lebsack, sidelined last week with a bad knee, is running full-speed again and will spell Slatinsky.

Other top Nebraska college action this week includes:

The Westmar (Iowa) Eagles visit Seward to battle it out with Concordia Saturday for the lead in the Tri-State Conference. Both squads boast 2-0 Tri-State records this season.

Concordia scored twice in the final three minutes to whip Sioux Falls, 26-14, last week. Westmar kept its Tri-State record unblemished with a victory over Northwestern, Iowa.

Midland, 1-1 in loop play, meets Tri-State Conference foe Yankton, S.D. in an attempt to catch the leaders.

A win would move the Warriors into a second-place tie with the loser of the Concordia-Westmar contest. Midland defeated Dana, 28-0 last Saturday.

Omaha University hits the road Saturday to face Bradley in Peoria, Ill.

The Indians lost defensive tackle Tom Olson last week in their 13-12 triumph over Morningside. The 6-0, 235-pound freshman will be out for at least three weeks with a shoulder injury.

Others nursing injuries include linebacker Larry Von Tersch and halfback Don Moray. Neither is considered to be injured seriously.

The Bradley Braves boast one of the top passing teams in the nation. The Braves threw more than forty passes in a 25-24 victory over Illinois State last week. OU topped the Braves, 47-26 in last season's encounter.

Steve De Paula pass for one touchdown and plunged for another Thursday night as he led Fairbury JC to its second victory within a week with a 14-7 victory over Peru's junior varsity.

The Fairbury club nipped Wentworth Military Academy, 3-0, last Friday on a fourth-quarter field goal.

Brundage Election Headlines Games

. . . IN TOKYO

Tokyo (AP) — The Americans held the Olympic sportlight Thursday with the re-election of Avery Brundage to another four year term as president of the International Olympic Committee and scheduled swimoffs for relay berths among the men.

Brundage has held the prestige post since 1952 and his victory in the balloting over England's Lord David Burghley made headlines here. As far as the athletes were concerned it didn't compare with the interest stirred by the battles coming up among the Yanks for coveted places on the relay teams.

The Americans, loaded with talent over the sprint distances, are favored to win the five relay races — three for men and two for women — in the swimming competition starting Sunday. The Yanks now hold all of the relay world records.

Some nine to 12 male free style sprinters will compete in two heats over 200 meters Thursday, starting about 4 p.m. — 2 a.m., EST in the States — for the three open places on the four-man 800 meter freestyle relay team.

Don Schollander, the 18-year-old holder of the world record of 1:56.6 from Lake Oswego, Ore., already has been given the anchor spot on the quartet.

Among those competing probably will be Roy Saari, 19-year-old strong boy from El Segundo, Calif., and holder of the world record for 1,500 meters; Bill Mettler, Mesa, Ariz.; Dave Lyons, Kenilworth, Ill.; Jike Wall, San Jose, Calif.; Ed Townsend, Santa Clara, Calif.; John Nelson, Pompano Beach, Fla.; Steve Clark, Los Altos, Calif.; Gary Ilman, San Jose, Calif.; and Carl Robie, Drexel Hill, Pa.

The 800-meter freestyle relay berths are open to any member of the team.

On Friday, the five backstrokers, breaststrokers and butterfly men on the squad will vie for the one spot open in each stroke for the medley relay quartet. The freestyle anchor let on this squad will go to the man who is fastest in the 400 meter free-style relay which comes up earlier in the Olympic program.

There is a strong possibility that world records could fall Friday in the races over 100 meters. In any case, the opposition coaches were green with envy over the situation facing the Americans.

Brundage, a controversial figure who holds strict views —some call it unrealistic in these times — on amateurism, was declared the winner over Burghley, the Marquis of Exeter, in a secret vote.

New Loop To Hold Track Meet

The newly-formed Trans-Nebraska Conference holds its first championship meet Saturday as cross country runners from the six member schools compete at 11 a.m. at the Seacrest Field course.

Hastings' Tom Ackles is the individual choice, expected to be pushed by Lincoln High's Aldis Augstums and Grand Island's Ron Callihan.

In the recent Nebraska Wesleyan invitational meet the order of finish among member schools was Grand Island, Hastings, Lincoln High, Southeast and Northeast. North Platte is the sixth conference member.

A total of 2,100 permits were authorized for turkey this year, the commission said, and 610 remained to be issued as of Wednesday.

Cyclones Prepare For Kansas Tilt

Ames (AP) — Iowa State held its last tough drill of the week Thursday as the Cyclones completed work for Saturday's game with Kansas here.

The first and second units were excused after an hour and a half. The third unit was kept another 15 minutes for a defensive session against the reserves.

In one of the most spirited drills of the season work was done mostly in individual groups with emphasis about equally divided between offense and defense. The first two units covered goal line defenses against the freshmen, using the Kansas' offense.

Sophomore quarterback Ron Halda saw some action in Thursday's drill. He was running with the second unit, which led to speculation he may be ready to play against the Jayhawks. Halda has been sidelined since Sept. 9 with a foot fracture.

Coach Clay Stapleton said he will stick with the starting lineup of a week ago.

Huskers Complete Heavy Drills For Gamecock Tilt

. . . FACE VARIED ATTACK

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska completed heavy workouts Thursday for Saturday's Band Day clash with South Carolina and prepared for a more varied attack from the Gamecocks than they faced last week at Iowa State.

"Last week we were able to concentrate mainly on a defense against rushing," Husker coach Bob Devaney noted Thursday. "But this week we face a more difficult task because of a more varied attack.

"We must stop South Carolina quarterback Dan Reeves," the NU coach warned. "He is a threat both running and passing."

Devaney pointed out that South Carolina has passed nearly as much as they have run with the ball in their first three games and Gamecock statistics bear him out.

South Carolina has made 18 first downs by passing compared to 20 via the rushing route and have gained 269 yards rushing with 360 by passing.

Reeves has completed 34 of 63 pass attempts and set a South Carolina record against Georgia last week. His 162 career pass completions tops the record set by Johnny Gramling at 150 in 1951-53.

Reeves completed 14 of 28 against Georgia. Reeves favorite targets are right end J.R. Wilburn and right halfback Larry Gill. Wilburn has caught 11 passes for 132 yards and Gill has nine for 82 yards.

Gamecock Stomper

A Miss Gamecock Stomper will be named at tonight's Husker pep rally on the NU campus.

She will be chosen from a list of contestants from each organized house. Each girl will be asked the question, "Why would you bet on the red and white rather than the black and red gamecocks?"

Five finalists will be chosen and each of these will do a 30-second Gamecock Stomp." A trophy will be awarded to the best "Gamecock Stomper."

U.S. Golfers Close Gap In Tourney

Rome (AP) — United States amateur golfers, defying wind and rain, crept up on the pace-setting British Thursday in the world team competition for the Eisenhower Trophy.

The Americans, defending the trophy they have won all three times since it was donated by ex-president Dwight D. Eisenhower, trailed Britain by a single stroke at the end of the second day's play in this unusual 72-hole team test, 445-446.

The three best U.S. scores —posted by Dale Morey, Ed Tutwiler and Bill Campbell— totaled 225, the day's second best. Strong, gusty winds generally pushed scores three or four strokes higher than on the opening day.

Britain, the first-day leader with 214, scored 231 on 76s by Michael Lunt and Michael Bonallack and an 81 by Ronnie Shade.

Thirty-three nations are entered in this competition, known officially as the World Team Championship of Amateur Golf. The three lowest scores for each four-man team go to make up the daily team totals. The highest scores each day are discarded.

New Zealand produced the individual and team leaders on the second day of play as the weather made the 6,879-yard, par 72 Olgiata course a severe test of golf.

Ross Murray, a 30-year-old New Zealander who said he was accustomed to wind at home, went around in 70, holing a series of long putts on the front nine. His team posted 223 for the day and moved up to third place with 448.

Italy with 449, Canada 451, Nationalist China 452 were the other team leaders after two rounds.

Only Murray and India's P. G. Sethi with 71 were under par Thursday. Morey, who canned 10-foot birdie putts on the fifth and ninth holes, and Nick Weslock of Canada had 72s.

Although individual scoring isn't officially recognized, Morey and Weslock had the top 36-hole scores, 147, and Sethi was one stroke behind. Two-time U.S. champion Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., one of the late starters who had to play through the strongest gusts, soared from an opening 74 to a 79, which didn't count for his team. Shade, who led the first round with 70, went up to 81.

Bookmakers Give Yanks Series Nod

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Las Vegas bookmakers made New York a 1-2 World Series favorite Thursday after the Yankees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3 and evened the Series at one game each.

New York is a 5-8 choice to win the third game Saturday at Yankee Stadium.

This means you'd have to lay $2 to win $1 if you were betting the Yanks will win the Series and $8 to $5 if you were betting they will win Saturday.

The odds on the Cardinals are 17-10 for the Series and 7-5 for Saturday's game, meaning you'd have to back them with $10 to win $17 on the Series or with $5 to win $7 on Saturday's game.

The difference between the Yankee and Cardinals odds is in the bookie's favor. He takes 2-1 on the Yanks but does not give 2-1 on the Cards.

NWU Harriers Win

Blair—Nebraska Wesleyan's cross country team defeated Dana here Thursday, 17-44, in a dual meet. Larry Stephens paced the winners over the three mile course with a time of 16 minutes and 23 seconds.

Ralph Merriman and Bob Briggs, both of Wesleyan placed second and third respectively as the Plainsmen pulled out their second win against no defeats. The NWU harriers have tied once.

Knights Offense Clicking; Prep Picker Foresees Win Over Bellevue

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

The biggest reversal of form during the young football season has been that made by Southeast's offensive crew, blanked in its first two games but functioning at a 40 points per game rate since then.

The change of pace has evened the Knights' record at 2-2 and puts them in position to better last year's 6-3 record. Last year the Southeast club put together four straight wins after a 2-3 start.

"We're not very far from being 4-0 right now," says coach Bill Stephenson. "We just made too many mistakes in those first two games (Northeast and Grand Island)," he explains.

He credits steady play by quarterback Tom Kos and a change in the substitution pattern as being factors in the turnabout. "We're substituting more, but not as much by unit now and the boys seem to be fresher," he adds.

The Knights aren't taking Bellevue lightly, despite the Chieftains' 0-4 record. Bellevue lost a 13-12 squeaker to undefeated Bishop Ryan and a 12-0 decision to Grand Island, which beat Southeast 7-0.

After Bellevue the Knights finish up with Lincoln High, Beatrice, Pius X and Bishop Ryan. "That's a tougher lineup than we had to face in our last four games last year," Stephenson warns.

Southeast and Pius X, which meets Omaha Cathedral, stay at home this week while Lincoln High and Northeast hit the road.

Top-ranked Northeast invades Beatrice (3-0-1) as the homecoming foe of the Orangemen. This contest marks the first major test for the veteran-laden Beatrice club, which lost only 14-0 to Northeast last year.

Lincoln High visits Grand Island for a renewal of one of the state's best football rivalries.

This week's forecast:

Bellevue v. Southeast at Seacrest Field—Their offense finally clicking, Knights will roll again.

Northeast at Beatrice—Orangemen always tough on Rockets, but Northeast has momentum and will keep it going.

Lincoln High at Grand Island—A "must" game for each team. Home field swings edge to Islanders.

Omaha Cathedral at Pius X—Cathedral has tough club, but will pay for last year's rout of Pius X as Thunderbolts get back into win column.

Crete at York—Anything goes in this spirited rivalry. Crete gets the nod to avenge last year's setback.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A sunny day in the Golden West. I am up with the birds. Not by choice but because I put off yesterday what I must do today.

"Early to bed and early to rise," said Ben Franklin. Adding that it made man healthy, wealthy and wise. Not me. It just makes me sleepy.

☆ ☆ ☆

Ben was the first man to suggest Daylight Saving Time. He advised it in Paris as a way for the Parisians to save wax candles. (However in Gay Paree, Ben was burning his candles at both ends.)

The Parisians thought Franklin was off his ever-loving rocker.

"The Parisians turned their berets backside-to in mockery," says a report from those waxy days.

It is hard to tell when a beret is turned thisaway or thataway. Apparently the Parisians could though.

☆ ☆ ☆

Farmers and movie theater owners have long complained of this snitched, sunny hour.

The movie theater owners say people don't go to movies while it is still light. (They stay out and play tennis and drink beer and other unhealthy pursuits.)

Farmers say that if they milk by the clock, the cows are not cooperative.

Cows give milk by sun time and don't give a hoot what the clock says.

My grocer gives milk any old time. Just reach in the box and grab the waxed carton with the patented pouring lip.

☆ ☆ ☆

Among long-gone sounds of earlier summer days is the rattle of milk bottles in the quiet morning.

The milkman brought the bottles to your porch. Rattle, rattle.

He took away the empty bottles. Rattle, rattle.

If you wanted more, you left a note in the bottle. "Leave one extra pint of cream."

The milkman's horse knew the route. Pulled up in front of the correct houses.

☆ ☆ ☆

Ordinarily I am up at 8. Cuffing the children and calling cheery greetings to one and all. ("Everybody shaddap until I've had coffee!")

At 9 a.m. I am at the desk. Sharpening pencils and my own dull wits.

By sun time, my working area should be dark and dismal — to match my feeling.

But with Daylight Saving, the sun is all over the place.

Thus I have to wait until 10 o'clock to go to work. Instead of saving time, I have lost a golden hour.

☆ ☆ ☆

Daylight saving was started by William Willet, an Englishman. He had time on his hands.

He started it for himself—a cottage industry—in 1904 in his home on Chiselhurst Common.

It did not become law until 1916. To make soldiers go to war earlier. And people get up earlier. And everybody kid themselves they were getting more out of life because they had more light hours.

You can lose a lot by shortening your night hours, people. Think of that.

Through all this tinkering with time, the placid cow has stood firm and fast. Giving milk according to the time the sun gets up. O, wise cow!

☆ ☆ ☆

Said Ben Franklin: "Plough deep while sluggards sleep." I do not know what concerned Ben so much about time.

Now that his letters are public, it would seem that Ben was night people. He surely got in a lot of action around Paris. I cannot find that much action around Paris. But maybe it was livelier in the old, sun time days.

With all the summer daylight I save, I cannot deposit any of it at the bank. Something's wrong with that. I don't know what. But something.

Venezuelan Here On Study Tour Of Governments

The secretary of state of Anzoategul, Venezuela, is visiting Lincoln this week to study Nebraska's unicameral Legislature.

Jose V. Marcano Baca's five-day stay is part of a nation-wide tour sponsored by the U.S. State Department. Baca is accompanied by State Department interpreter Theodore Manzano.

Baca holds a post equivalent to Nebraska's Lt. Governor and secretary of state, and he said his duties primarily are directed toward economic planning and development of Anzoategul.

He said his state also has a unicameral Legislature.

He arrived in Lincoln Wednesday and will leave for California Sunday. Baca said his primary interest is a study of state governments in the U.S. and their relationship to Municipal governments.

Group Seeking Funds For Bust Of Pershing

A special committee of the Military Order of World Wars has been created to undertake sponsorship of a sculptured bust of the late General of the Armies John J. Pershing to be placed in the Hall of Fame at the State Capitol.

The Nebraska Hall of Fame Commission previously had selected Gen. Pershing for the honor. The commission, however, has no funds to finance the cost of such a sculpture.

Major B. Frank Watson of Lincoln has been chosen chairman of the special MOWW committee which will be known as the Pershing Memorial Committee.

The group will seek co-sponsors among all the posts of veterans, lodges, and other organizations who wish to participate, and expects to have its campaign in full operation by November 11, Veterans Day.

The Hall of Fame Commission has arranged with world-famous sculptor Bryant Baker to prepare a bronze bust of Gen. Pershing from the case he made from life in 1921. A replica of this bust is at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Both the sculptor and Gen. Pershing considered the bust to be a good likeness. The general's son, Warren, has informed the committee that the bust is the best of the many made of his distinguished father.

The completed work will not be ready for dedication before early next year.

Many offers to defray the cost already have been made, the committee reported, but said it desires that as many Nebraskans as possible be given the opportunity to participate in the project.

Contributions or letters of support may be mailed to the secretary of the Hall of Fame Commission at 1500 R in Lincoln.

The commission previously has selected the late Sen. George W. Norris and Nebraska authoress Willa Cather to the Nebraska Hall of Fame.

The Republican candidate for re-election in the First Congressioal District reports he is using on occasion in his campaign travels the plane owned by the six Beermann brothers of northeast Nebraska.

Freed from duties in Washington by the adjournment of Congress, Beermann estimated he will cover 3,000 miles in the next 10 days.

The schedule included a luncheon with the Northeast Nebraska Association of County Officials in Norfolk Thursday.

Appearances in Lincoln and Wahoo are scheduled Friday; a Lincoln reception Saturday, followed by a smorgasbord at South Sioux City and a dinner at Geneva.

He said that if weather permits, he will fly from South Sioux City to Geneva to make the two widely separated appearances.

Beginning Monday, Beermann will join the Republican caravan and tour the First District for five days, departing it once on Tuesday for a special appearance in York.

State Holds Over $8 Million For Buildings, Improvements

State Treasurer R. Merle Humphries said Thursday the state is holding more than $8 million in funds for new buildings and capital improvements.

"The present building funds are higher than those held in previous years," he said, "because the Legislature raised the property mill levy in 1963 and valuations in the state have risen."

He said all monies accrued from levies have been appropriated to departments in specific amounts for specific projects.

The more than $8 million is earning about 3½% interest for the state's general fund, Humphries said.

The total funds include $4,429,340 collected by counties under the 1963 special state property tax levy hike to 1.775 mills, $2,043,748 collected under the old 1.1 mill building fund levy, $796,652 collected under the special university hospital building .25 mill levy and $764,320 collected under the special dental building .25 mill levy. The latter three levies were repealed with the passage of the 1963 levy hike.

Humphries said $5,382,455 has been collected with the present levy and only $953,115 had been spent by Sept. 30, the close of the fifth quarter of the current biennium.

ACA LEADERS BACK MARTIN

Republican Rep. Dave Martin Thursday received the endorsement of the Americans for Constitutional Action.

Martin opposes Democratic nominee William Colwell in the Third Congressional District.

The endorsement was announced by Admiral Ben Moreell, chairman of the ACA board of trustees.

Moreell praised Martin as "a highly qualified, dedicated member of the Congress who has fought courageously to preserve our constitutional form of government and the social and economic systems it provides and protects."

Martin's actions in Congress, he said, are those of a man of highest integrity and moral courage. We are honored to recommend his candidacy to the electorate in the Third District."

Ex-Lincoln Man Now Youngest Colo. Architect

James S. Junge of Boulder, Colo., and formerly of Lincoln is currently Colorado's youngest licensed architect. He is 26.

Junge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Junge of 2735 Calvert, was recently licensed by the Colorado Licensing Board for Architects.

He attended the University of Nebraska and obtained his degree in architecture from the University of Colo. He is married, and has three children.

AUBURN'S POWER BID SUPPORTED

A. D. Majors of Omaha, a member of the State Normal Board, urged the Nebraska Power Review Board to approve the City of Auburn's application to provide additional electrical power to the City of Peru and Peru State College.

He said in this way the college will be assured of adequate electricity to meet its ever-expanding needs.

He testified at the second day of a scheduled two day hearing on a dispute over whether Auburn or the Eastern Nebraska Public Power District shall serve the Peru load. Delbert Dirrim, the board's hearing examiner, said the hearing probably would be continued until Oct. 16.

Majors said the Normal Board is "very much concerned" about a possible power shortage at the college and asked that the case be determined as soon as possible so the City of Peru can obtain adequate electricity.

Both Auburn and the Eastern Nebraska Public Power District applied to the board to serve Peru and the college after the City of Peru voted to discontinue operation of its power facilities.

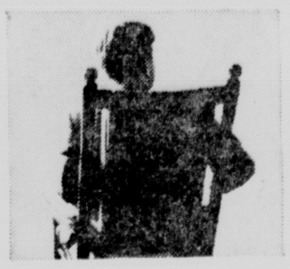

Peru Mayor John McIntire testified the city's generation equipment is old and in constant need of repair.

Verdict Of Acquittal Makes Judge 'Sick'

Washington (AP) — Judge George L. Hart Jr. directed a U.S. district court jury Thursday to acquit James W. Killough of a manslaughter charge in the death of his wife although Hart said, "We know the man is guilty."

"I will direct a verdict of acquittal, and I do so with a heavy heart," Hart told a hushed courtroom. ". . . In fact it almost makes me physically ill."

Hart said the U.S. Court of Appeals left the U.S. attorney's office with no case when it ruled invalid three confessions Killough had made.

"In this case," Hart said, "defendant on three separate occasions voluntarily confessed of foully killing his wife and throwing her body on a dump like a piece of garbage. He led police there. Yet the U.S. Court of Appeals in its wisdom has seen fit to throw the confessions out . . .

"We sit here, blind, deaf and dumb, and we can't know these things."

Killough, 41, remained silent and passive as he had throughout the three-day trial.

Killough's wife, Goldie, disappeared on Oct. 13, 1960, and police discovered her body at a refuse dump 12 days later.

But there was insufficient admissible evidence at the trial to show that the body at the dump was actually that of Killough's wife.

TWO FOUND NEW IDOLS

Martha Schendell, left, and Janice Hawkins, Cleveland, Ohio, teen-agers missing since Sept. 17, pose outside the U.S. embassy in London before being returned to the United States. They reportedly whipped off to London in search of the Beatles, mop-haired musical group, but now say they hav new idols—the Rolling Stones, another beat group.

WEST ATTACHES TO MOSCOW, LONDON

Moscow (AP)—Reports circulating here Thursday said the four Western military attaches accused by the Russians of spying will return to Moscow Friday—as a possible face-saving move—and leave later the same day for London.

There was no official confirmation or comment on these reports.

The four have been on a trip to Tokyo, Hong Kong and New Delhi. They are Col. George A. Aubrey of Annapolis, Md., and Lt. Col. Karl R. Liever of Osmond, Neb., both of the U.S. Army; U.S. Air Force Maj. James F. Smith of Meers, Okla., and Lt. Cmdr, Nigel N. Laville of the British Navy.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said, "As far as the embassy is concerned these men are returning to their posts." He conceded that another U.S. government agency, such as the Defense Department, could then order the men home.

Informed British sources said, in reply to questions, that Laville's "original plans to return to Moscow have not been changed."

The attaches were accused of espionage during a 4,000-mile train trip last week from Moscow to Khabarovsk, in eastern Siberia.

For the past two days, Soviet newspapers have repeated the spy charges and printed photographs claiming to show the seized notes and pictures.

Two longhand notes written in English were printed Thursday allegedly showing that the attaches sought information on Soviet missile sites. Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, published the notes which said, "New rail overpass under construction. Probably leads to ICBM site," and "ICBM sites confirmed."

Sept. Tree Trims Cost $9.72 Each

Park Department crews trimmed 457 street trees during September, City Forester Don Guinan reported Thursday.

Another 137 trees were topped or removed as the city's 1964-65 tree-trimming program got underway.

Man-hours during September totalled 2,358, or an average labor cost of $9.72 per tree.

The city has appropriated $90,471 for the tree-trimming and spraying program this current fiscal year.

Annual Greek Weekend Opens At NWU Friday

Greek organizations at Nebraska Wesleyan University will stage their annual Greek Weekend Friday and Saturday.

Joan Frey, president of the Panhellenic Council, said the weekend will begin on a serious note before giving way to a day of games for sororities and fraternities.

The weekend starts with a luncheon Friday in the Campus Center for Interfraternity and Panhellenic Council members.

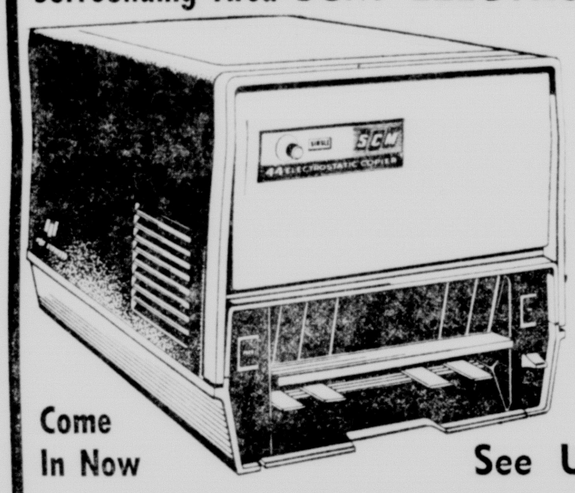

Tom Cunningham, director of expansion for the Phi Kappa Tau national fraternity, will speak. Cunningham, a native of Doniphan, is a 1963 graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan.

A hootenany, with each Greek organization providing talent, is set for 3-5 p.m. Friday in the Campus Center.

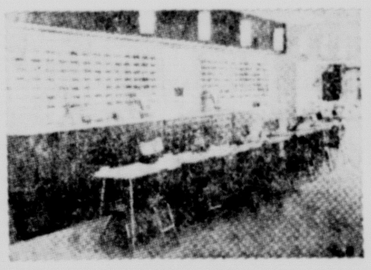

The sororities will have egg-throwing, relay events, tug-of-war and a sack race during their Greek games set for 9:00 a.m. Saturday at Ira J. Taylor gymnasium.

The boys games are set for 1:00 p.m. A combined girl-boy sack race will wind up the games at 2:30 p.m.

The weekend winds up Sunday with all Greek organizations attending the 10:50 church service at First Methodist Church, 50th & St. Paul.

'Pentagon Tie-In Of Satellite Bad'

Washington (AP)—The Pentagon's effort to work out a tie-in with the commercial communications satellite system for military messages was "ill advised, poorly timed and badly coordinated," a congressional report said Thursday.

The report, by a House military operations subcommittee, said that while it is essential to search for economies in military spending, "We do not believe . . . that economizing efforts should throttle programs essential to the national security."

"Satellite communications," it added, "is one of the most vital and relatively less costly of our major defense programs."

The subcommittee recommended, among other things, that the Defense Department "proceed without further delay to establish a medium altitude, random-orbit satellite communications system for operational use."

Planning History

The report traced in detail the history of military planning for a worldwide satellite communications system for military use.

It said Project Advent, which would have utilized the synchronous or "stationary" satellite technique, was canceled by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara after two years of effort and expenditure of about $170 million.

At the same time McNamara approved a less ambitious and cheaper medium altitude system. The report said:

"Two more years passed, and still we have no working system. The technology is known, the components are proven, a reliable booster is available, the specifications are firm, the preliminary design work is done. The effort was halted when Secretary McNamara decided to explore whether the unique military requirements could be met by the Communications Satellite Corp."

The satellite corporation, called Comsat, is a privately owned venture, but it is under close government supervision. The report called the fruitless negotiations of the Pentagon with Comsat "the year of the quiet negotiations." The main argument in favor of this approach was it would be much cheaper.

McNamara then decided to go ahead with a separate military system.

"The wisdom of Secretary McNamara's decision — unfortunately long delayed—is evidenced by the need for improved communications to remote areas in a world of recurring crises and constant danger of war," the report said.

"Satellites offer a means to establish these vital communications links.

"The Defense Department, overly sensitive to budgetary constraints and prior mistakes in satellite development, has been too timid and uncertain about exploiting proved technologies for the establishment of a workable system of satellite communications. Valuable time has been lost . . ."

Slight Drop In Aid Under Hill-Burton

Nebraska will receive more than $1.7 million in federal funds during the 1964-65 fiscal year under the new Hill-Burton Act which provides hospital construction aid to states.

Verne Pangborn, state hospital division director, said he was told by a Hill-Burton official in Kansas City that the confirmed total is $1,749,483 —slightly less than the previous year's allocation of $1,759,347.

Of that total, Pangborn said, $1,203,272 is for general hospital construction, and the remainder is divided into long term care facilities, diagnostic and treatment and rehabilitation.

Panborn said he would receive additional information and guidelines on fiscal problems of the new Hill-Burton Act regulations in a conference with Edwin Given, hospital consultant for the program, and John Williams, architectural consultant, both from the Kansas City regional office.

CUP TO BE ENSHRINED . . . by Mrs. Pozywio, left. Husband, niece Mrs. Phillip Kazmer admire it. LBJ drank out of it.

She'll Never Forget Time Lyndon Drank Her Coffee

By ED D'MOCH

East Chicago, Ind. (AP)—"If I live to be a hundred, I'll never forget today," said pretty Lois Pozywio, the young housewife who served President Johnson two cups of black coffee during a campaign stopover.

"It was like a dream — something that always happens to somebody else—and then it happened to me," she said, describing how she felt after the President's brief visit.

Johnson arrived at the head of a motorcade from Gary, Ind., at the George Washington High School athletic field in East Chicago. He alighted from his car and began shaking hands with scores of persons lining a temporary fence.

Shaking Hands

Then he walked beside a rope stretched across Grand Blvd., shaking hands until he was immediately in front of the Pozywio home across the street from the field.

Mrs. Pozywio, who married Raymond Pozywio, also 21, five months ago, said they were entertaining about a dozen other young people, mostly women, because the view of the speaker's stand from their sun porch was excellent.

"We decided that since Mr. Johnson was so close to us, oe of us might get to shake his hand," she said. "All of us then went outside."

He 'Certainly Would'

She said "somebody" in her group shouted to Johnson, "would you like a cup of coffee, Mr. President?" The President replied, "I certainly would," and he came up the stairs, into the sun porch.

"I could have collapsed," Mrs. Pozywio said, "but the President walked into the house and sat down in an easy chair.

"I had just set down a freshly made pot of coffee and asked Mr. Johnson how he preferred to drink it. He replied, 'I like it black, please,' and I gave him a cup."

Gets Second Cup

She said that as she introduced the President to her guests, he smiled and told each how much he enjoyed being in East Chicago. After he finished the first cup of coffee she asked if he wanted another and he replied, "Yes, I certainly would. It really is good coffee." She gave him the second cup.

Mrs. Pozywio said Mr. Johnson handed out LBJ buttons to all, cautioning the young women that "you'd better tell your husbands you got these buttons from Lady Bird, just in case they're jealous."

Johnson told the group, "I feel just like I'm with my homefolks."

Says Thanks

As Secret Service and other security men hovered around the front door and the small, one-story brick and stucco house, Johnson thanked Mrs. Pozywio for her hospitality. He urged the group to "get out and vote Nov. 3" and left the house with a final "glad to have met all of you."

He walked across the street, shook hands with more persons lining a barrier, mounted the speaker's platform and addressed several thousand persons in the athletic field.

Ray Pozywio, a night shift steel plant worker, said the President's visit was "the best one thing that ever happened to anybody in this house." He said he felt "really sad that my mother wasn't here to meet the President.

Baby-Sitting

Ray's mother, Mrs. Wanda Pozywio, with whom the young couple live "was baby-sitting for the children of one of my brothers," he said.

Lois and Ray said they will be voting for the first time Nov. 3, "and we needn't tell you who will get our vote for president."

What will happen to the cup Johnson used?

"I'm going to put it away," the young housewife said. "It will never be used again. It'll be enshrined in our house."

LBJ Leads In Polls Of 'Mountains'

Salt Lake City (UPI)—The revolt of many Republican moderates and liberals against GOP presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater has made President Johnson a strong favorite to carry most, if not all, of the 24 electoral votes at stake in the mountain states.

According to pollsters, the President is running far ahead in Utah, Nevada and Colorado while the battle is far from over in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

The six-state area, heralded as "Goldwater country" by GOP leaders several months ago, has shifted toward the President because of GOP defections and an undercurrent of uncertainty over Goldwater's statements on control of tactical nuclear weapons.

The President appears to have gone ahead in Montana after trailing Goldwater in the early stages of the campaign. The Arizona conservative is given slight margins in Wyoming and Idaho.

The Denver Post reports that 68% of Coloradoans "most likely" to vote in November favor Johnson. Goldwater has 26% of the vote with 6% undecided.

GOP state chairman Paul Wolt concedes that the President's lead is in line with his own soundings throughout the state. However, he predicts Goldwater will pick up strength as the senator "projects himself to the public." The Post's poll shows nearly 33% of Republicans querried supporting Johnson.

BANKING DEPT. SEEKING LESS

The State Banking Department has asked for a 1965-67 budget of $701,606, down $33,134 or 4.5% from the current appropriation.

The department is funded mostly by license and examing fees collected from the various financial institutions it regulates.

The Division of Employment of the State Labor Department asked the next Legislature to appropriate $4,989,949, up $893,018 or 21.8% from the current appropriation.

The division is operated entirely by federal funds and the state appropriation is merely a necessary mechanical step for obtaining these monies.

Arndt: Duty Abandoned By Hruska

Raymond W. Arndt, Columbus, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, said Thursday his opponent, Sen. Roman Hruska, was "attempting to divert public attention from his own failure to represent the people of Nebraska in the Senate."

Arndt said Hruska had abandoned his duty and was "attempting to create confusion by attacking other people."

The Democratic candidate said Hruska's "unjustified and vile attacks on the President of the United States has destroyed Hruska's effectiveness in the Senate."

Arndt said also that "Hruska's attack upon Governor Morrison's administration was one of the most irresponsible things I have ever witnessed."

He said the senator "has never been enough interested in Nebraska to even visit the governor's office since Morrison has been governor."

Students Going To Aid Colwell

Hastings (AP)—Young Democrats from Nebraska Wesleyan University, Hastings College and Kearney State College will campaign for democratic congressional candidate William E. Colwell in Hastings, Kearney and Grand Island Saturday.

John Colwell, son of the candidate, is president of Wesleyan's Young Democrat group.

In the three cities the Young Democrats will hand out information leaflets and distribute bumper stickers.

Easterners Buy Peter Pan Bakers

Omaha (AP)—Control of Peter Pan Bakers, Inc., has been sold to a group of eastern investors, the firm announced.

A spokesman said Milton Petersen Jr., and Peter F. Petersen, 2nd, brothers who owned 75% of the company's stock, sold their interests to Manver, Inc., a Delaware corporation.

No financial terms were disclosed. The announcement said there will be no changes in operation or personnel.

Employment Continues Its Down Trend

Total Lincoln employment continued its downyard trend during the month of August according to the Nebraska Department of Labor.

Employment declined by 350 mainly as a result of reductions in the number of agricultural workers.

Lincoln area unemployment for August was estimated at 1,400, a decrease of 250 from July and down 350 from August one year ago.

A summary of the industrial origin of unemployment insurance claimants during August indicated that 34% were formerly employed in trade, 25% in manufacturing, 18% were former service workers and 13% had last been employed in construction.

CORNERSTONE CEREMONY SET

A cornerstone ceremony for the new quarter of a million dollar school building under construction for the Lincoln School of Commerce and the National Business Institute will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Wayne W. Wiegert, director of the institution, announced that Gov. Frank B. Morrison, Sen. Roman Hruska and Rep. Ralph Beermann will take part in the ceremony.

The new building, which will be completed in late December of this year, is located at 1821 K St.

B&O President New Chairman Of Rock Island

Chicago (UPI) — Jervis Langdon, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Thursday was elected chairman of the board of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad.

Langdon will fill a post left vacant by the death in 1961 of John D. Farrington, then chairman of the board.

R. Ellis Johnson, president of the road, has been acting as chief executive officer. He will become top administrative officer, and retain the presidency. Langdon will become chairman and chief executive officer.

While the chairman's post was vacant, the road was run by the chairman of the finance committee, Col. Henry Crown, and the chairman of the executive committee, Roy Ingersoll, former chairman of Borg-Warner. Both committees are still in existence.

'HAYSTACK' DEDICATION

The U.S. Air Force and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Lincoln Laboratory dedicated the "Haystack" experimental space communications and radar system with ceremonies at the project site in Tyngsboro, Mass. Through a cutaway, shown in the artist's drawing illustration, a man is shown adjusting the 9-foot-diameter secondary reflector housed in the 150-foot-wide radome, the largest rigid radome in the world.

Mothers Storm Police Lines Protesting Busing

New York (UPI) — Fifty white mothers tried to storm police lines Thursday outside an elementary school in a protest against classroom integration plans. A bomb threat emptied another school which was the scene of a near-riot by indignant parents Wednesday.

The white women sought to break through a cordon of police at a Richmond Hill, Queens, grade school in efforts to enroll two children there rather than have them sent by bus to a more distant school to achieve greater social balance.

There were no arrests in the incident, and the mothers soon dispersed.

The name of Republican presidential nominee Sen. Barry M. Goldwater was injected into the dispute Thursday when an anti-busing parents group announced that Goldwater was in agreement with them.

Mrs. Rosemary Gunning, executive secretary of the Parents and Taxpayers Coordinating Council (PAT), said the group had received a letter from the GOP nominee expressing his opposition to the busing plan.

Goldwater's letter came after PAT officials wrote him to ask for his views on busing. "It is my sincere conviction that the fundamental right of parents to determine the proper education of their children must be observed," Goldwater said.

"In the United States, children must remain responsibility of their parents. The state must not be permitted to take over that sacred right."

A piece of wood from the C. C. White Building will be among the items to be placed into the time capsule of the cornerstone for Nebraska Wesleyan University's new auditorium-fine arts center.

The cornerstone ceremony is set for 10:00 a.m. Friday in the C. C. White Auditorium, a hall which will be replaced by the auditorium in the new building next fall.

Eighteen persons will place items in the time capsule.

Loan-A-Dog Plan Devised To Have Part-Time Canine

Spokane, Wash. (AP)—The animal shelter here is publicizing pooches for pedestrian pilgrimages.

It all started when Diane Dizmang's parents said she couldn't have a fulltime dog around the house. But, Diane, 19, wanted one to accompany her on walks so she asked the shelter if she could borrow a dog.

Her request was approved, and Glen A. Yake, public works director, thinks it's such a good idea that he announced a loan-a-dog service Wednesday for all those who want a part-time canine companion.

Insufficient Training Part Of 'Ambulance Problem'

Chicago (AP)—Exclusive handling of accident cases by policemen in dual-purpose station wagon cruiser cars — as pioneered in Louisville, Ky.—was suggested Thursday for national use as a means of combatting the "ambulance problem."

The "ambulance problem" was defined by Dr. Robert H. Kennedy of New York, chairman of a special committee of the American College of Surgeons on the subject, as being due to insufficiently trained ambulance drivers and attendants.

He told reporters at the annual meeting of the American College of Surgeons that "over 50% of the ambulances operated in the United States are operated by morticians (undertakers) . . . so that there is a good chance that you are taken to the hospital in the same ambulance that takes the corpse away . . ."

Straight To Operation

At the same session of the surgeons' meeting, Dr. James C. Drye of the University of Louisville said that under his city's system, policemen often bypass the emergency room of a hospital and go directly to an operating room.

He said two operating rooms are kept set up, "ready and available at an instance's notice at all times."

Dr. Kennedy said, "Louisville, to my mind, has the best coordinated system for handling the injured persons of any city of the country."

Asked by a reporter whether this system means that policemen are improperly practicing medicine, Dr. Drye replied:

"They are not practicing medicine . . . They are practicing good first aid . . ."

Wants Laws

Dr. Oscar Hampton Jr. of Washington University, St. Louis, called for enactment of city or county ordinances to regulate the conduct of ambulance drivers.

Dr. Drye, in outlining the experience of Louisville, said:

"We believe that this system is somewhat unique and has many advantages. First, the role of the police in furnishing transportation to the injured has worked out extremely well with us. By using policemen and their equipment, we are able to carefully control the caliber of people who are doing this work."

"The advantage of taking the injured persons directly to the operating room is obvious . . . It is in this area where we have the most experienced surgeons, anesthetists, nurses, and our best equipment . . ."

Brauer Takes Issue

. . . With Californian

Grand Island (AP)—S. H. Brauer Jr., secretary of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, has taken issue with the statements of a California educator about educational systems.

The NSIA is supporting a proposed change in the system by which Nebraska's state commissioner would be elected and the board of education appointed. The opposite system is presently used in Nebraska—the board of education elected and the commissioner appointed.

Helen Heffernan, chief of the bureau of elementary education in the Department of Education in California, said in Omaha recently that California has the system of an elected commissioner and an appointed board and "it's the world's worst." She also said every "reputable" educator in the nation supports the system now used by Nebraska.

Brauer said in a statement Thursday that only eight states in the 50 use the system employed by Nebraska and declared that in claiming that every "reputable" educator supports the Nebraska system she is "implying that those who do not agree with her opinions are disreputable."

Brauer also challenged the statement attributed to Miss Heffernan that critics of American schools ignore the fact that this nation, with 7% of the world's population, has garnered, mainly through education, 55% of its wealth.

Brauer declared that while no one would deny the importance of education to economic development, "to attribute it solely to education is half truth at best. Her statement disregards the importance of our system of government and the personal incentive and motivation that is inherent to the American way of life."

Coulter Fined For Putting Nails Across Driveway

Falls City (AP) — Gary Coulter, a United Steelworkers Union member on strike at Frontier Homes, has been found guilty in County Court of placing roofing nails across the driveway into the Frontier factory, Sept. 25.

Coulter denied the act, but four witnesses for the state testified they saw him do it.

County Judge Albert Maust fined Coulter $50 and costs. Coulter appealed the case to District Court and was released on $200 bond.

In the Justice Court of Harold C. Prichard, four Frontier strikers won a directed verdict of innocent in a case in which they were charged with violating the Nebraska mass picketing law. Judge Prichard ruled that there was not enough evidence to sustain a conviction.
